OCCUPANTS SHAKEN UP AS CAR LEAVES RAILS

Rear Trucks of College Park Trolley Carry Back End of Car Over Embankment.

Twelve passengers were shaken up and badly scared Monday morning when the rear trucks of a College Park trolley left the tracks just north of the East Point sub-station and carried the back end of the car down an embankment. Although ambulances were summoned to the scene, none of the occupants of the trolley complained of injuries serious enough to warrant hospital treatment.

According to the officials of the street car company, no cause could be assigned for the jumping of the track by the rear trucks. When the accident occurred the car inclined steeply because of the embankment, but the front trucks held securely to the rails and prevented the entire vehicle from going down the embankment. The car was operated by W. P. Dial. Dial stated after the accident that he heard passengers scream about the same time something seemed to go wrong with the rear end of the car. He turned off the power and set the brakes, he stated, but before the car came to a halt the rear trucks, jumping the track, had pulled the car more than half way over the embankment. Until wrecking crews could remove the car from its position both tracks were blocked, but a shuttle car system was inaugurated and passengers bound in either direction were transferred and taken to their destinations.

VICTIM REPORTS LOSING $20 IN CASH, SUIT AND WATCHES

Loss of $20 in cash, two watches and a suit of clothes to a trio of men who took him for a long ride Saturday afternoon was reported Monday to Fulton county police by Herbert Hammond, of 1239 East Main street, College Park.

Hammond told Desk Sergeant Ora Head that the men offered him a ride home, and, after they had stopped at two places to allow him to get his wife's wrist watch from a jeweler and a suit of clothes from a pressing club, they drove him to an unfamiliar section of town and held him up. Hammond said that he was held prisoner in an unfurnished house for a time, and then was carried for a short ride, released and told to find his way home. County Officers West and Roberts are working on the case.

EIGHT DIE WHEN GALE HITS EUROPEAN COAST

Storm From Southwest Whips Western Coast for Hours.

LONDON, Dec. 30.—(AP)—At least eight deaths were caused by the south-west gale which swept over Great Britain and the European sea coast over the week-end before it blew itself out late today.

Most of the casualties were on land where the wind blew down trees and steeples and caused the collapse of several houses. The fatalities reported were in England and France but several persons were injured in cities of northwestern Germany.

A member of the crew of the steamship Atlantic, Hull to Alexandria, was killed when a huge wave hurled him against a bulwark, and another man suffered broken legs. A derelict wooden vessel floating bottom up drove ashore against the high cliffs of Scousburgh, Shetland, but salvagers were unable to reach it before night.

Several ships reported slight damage to super-structures in the gale last night. The battleship Doherty, which had planned to leave for Spithead in preparation for the spring Mediterranean cruise, was held in port by the rough weather. Conditions tonight returned nearly to normal except for floodwaters in the Thames valley. Channel shipping and the Imperial Airways resumed services.

Leon Daudet, Fiery Royalist, Wins Pardon and Promises To Resume Stormy Career

Picturesque French Champion of Bourbons Says He Will Resume His Vigorous Tactics.

BY RALPH HEINZEN.

United News Staff Correspondent.

PARIS, Dec. 30.—(United News.)

Leon Daudet is free to return to France and continue his campaign to put Philippe, Duke of Orleans, on the throne as king.

President Gaston Doumergue signed a pardon today for Daudet, brilliant monarchist and journalist, who has been in virtual exile at Brussels since he escaped from jail here in June, 1927.

"If I return, I swear to enter politics more violently than before," Daudet said when interviewed in Brussels. And his friends expect him to keep his word.

Daudet always was a storm fighter and an interesting one. Solidly built and determined-looking, he furnished all of France with sarcasm and humor. As a member of the chamber of deputies and at the same time the personal representative of Philippe, the Bourbon pretender to the throne, he created a stir for restoration of the empire.

He became editor of Action Française, royalist publication under ban of the pope. As a writer he was a worthy son of the famous literateur, Alphonse Daudet.

Several years ago his 15-year-old son Philippe was shot dead. Police said "Suicide," but Leon Daudet fought the theory. He published bitter articles, accused police of killing the boy, implicated the chauffeur. He attacked Raymond Poincare, at that time premier, who had a relative in the police department.

His pen became so bitter that a criminal libel action was brought against him. He barricaded himself in his house. Firemen shot tons of water through the windows to dislodge him. Reserves were powerless.

Finally the police chief arrived in formal attire. He pressed the doorbell, and the door swung open. "I suggest you come out," he told Daudet, "and prevent bloodshed." Politeness won. Daudet surrendered. He languished in Sainte prison, but his friends were not idle. They commandeered all telephones in the ministry of interior one day, and one of them telephoned the prison governor and ordered Daudet's release in the name of the minister of interior.

13 Members Of Adaman Club On Pike's Climb

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. Dec. 30.—(United News.)—High on the icy slopes of Pike's Peak, one of the loftiest summits in the Rockies, 13 members of the unique Adaman Club thawed ice-nipped toes tonight before finishing their annual New Year's climb.

The doctory hikers, who initiate yearly one new member by climbing with him to the snowbound summit of the peak, left here at 9:30 a. m. today.

Hours of climbing through heavy timber finally brought them past the timber line and across precipitous expanses of ice, before the sun set behind neighboring peaks.

The climbers were bundled in heavy sheepskin coats, woolen mittens and several pairs of socks to protect against the frigid blasts about the summit, some 14,000 feet high.

Twenty-three miles of the 30-mile journey to the top of the peak were traversed today over the old Barr trail to a cabin seven miles from the top, where food and fuel had been stored.

Tomorrow the 12 members and their "pledge" will make the most difficult part of the climb, the last few miles to the summit, over a trail obliterated by many feet of crustal snow.

When they reach the top, probably after sundown, they will find 3,000 pounds of fireworks taken up by the tourist cog railroad in the autumn before heavy snows stopped travel.

The fireworks will be ignited at midnight to illuminate the cold, black sky for miles around. If clouds do not obscure the peak, the display should be visible 75 miles away.

The pyrotechnics will be climaxed by an extra large rocket which will shoot in a white arc toward the north in honor of Harold Amundsen, famous arctic explorer and the only deceased member of the club.

The club was organized eight years ago with five members. The hazardous climb has been an annual occurrence since.

Carload of Airplanes Arrive Here

Candler field's first carload of airplanes arrived here Monday, when four DH Moths, shipped from the Lowell, Mass., factory, were delivered to Doug Davis, southern sales manager for the Curtiss-Wright Sales Corporation.

One of the ships will be sent to the Miami air races and Florida tour, in January; another turned over to H. L. Pritchard, Curtiss-Wright distributor for Georgia, and the remaining two kept at Candler field for demonstration purposes. At the top, above, is shown one of the Moths being removed from the boxcar in which all four arrived, and at the bottom mechanics are shown beginning the work of installing prop and wings.

The prospect of an extra session of the legislature which will involve taxes even more burdensome than the present ones was held up Monday by H. C. Norman, state tax commissioner, as the inevitable result if the sales tax law is attacked and held unconstitutional.

"If the necessity should arise for a special session of the legislature . . . in my candid judgment the general assembly would not further burden the farmer and the small home owner, who have carried the load through the years, but would exact the necessary toll from the interests in Georgia that have largely escaped taxation for many years," he said.

Mr. Norman's statement was made after a report was published in Atlanta that an attack would be made against the gross sales tax law in the immediate future. He said that although there have been rumors of such an attack the past six weeks no definite reports have reached his desk. Attorneys who were reported to have been employed by interests opposed to the tax law denied that they had been engaged.

"There has been some talk of attacking the gross sales tax, but to state neither this office nor the state treasury has any official position on the matter," he said. "The state tax office has heard nothing of any contemplated attack upon the constitutionality of the Georgia gross receipts or sales tax law."

Mr. Norman stated, "On the contrary we have had the most cordial expressions of approval and willingness to pay this tax from leading business interests all over Georgia. No popular has this tax proven that a number of Georgia's patriotic businessmen have already sent in checks in payment of this tax."

"While the gross receipts tax was opposed in the general assembly by certain interests, for the most part interests that are contributing very little to the support of the state, there was never a suggestion from an opponent of the measure in either the house or the senate that the act was unconstitutional. The most eminent lawyers in the state have expressed informal opinions that the act is constitutional. In the argument of the income tax measure in Fulton superior court the distinguished lawyers attacking this act took occasion to express their opinion of the constitutionality of the gross receipts tax law. It would be exceedingly unfortunate if the collection of this tax was held up. The state must pay its bills. It must uphold its credit. The gross receipts tax is a most fair and equitable measure. If the necessity should arise for a special session of the general assembly this body would raise revenue from some source and a tax more burdensome than the gross receipts tax would probably result. In my candid judgment the general assembly would not further burden the farmer and the small home owner, who have carried the load through the years, but would exact the necessary toll from the interests in Georgia that have so largely escaped taxation for many years."

The coming American standard, Professor Edwards believes, will eliminate many common faults in diction, apparent in every section of the country. The pronunciation of the word "rubber," for instance, will eventually become standardized as it is pronounced by southerners and easterners. The last "r" will never be heard. The southern Illinois "Egyptians," as another example, will use such language as "try a piece of this here now" and "rubber" will eventually be speaking in a totally different manner.

The radio and talkies will standardize our speech rapidly," Professor Edwards said. "The process will be the greatest example of a change in speech in the history of the world. The radio announcer and speaker are beginning to standardize their talk. The movie field is developing the good voice. Many of the actresses who were worshipped in the days of silent pictures are no more. They lost their sex appeal the minute they opened their mouths. Our language, due to these two influences, and the added influence of rapid travel, is undergoing a remarkable change."

The United States, says the professor, is the only large nation that has no standard of speech. The French standard is the Parisian. Germany's standard is that spoken in Berlin. England's is spoken by those persons educated in the public schools and colleges. But in the United States, the dialect of an Arkansas hill-billy may be regarded as being just as correct, technically, as the parlance of a Georgia cracker.

"Language," said Professor Edwards, "is a growing and changing thing. For that reason we can't rely on the dictionary as a final court of appeal. We have no standard."

The growing tendency on the part of radio announcers to perfect their diction has a serious effect on the situation, the professor believes. And the usual sophistication and erudition of the actor is a great help in the movie line. Actors are usually well-educated, widely traveled, and cosmopolites in every sense of the word, according to Professor Edwards. It is good, he believes, that they are to play an important part in setting our standard.

Professor Edwards thinks that the great fault in American speech is a harshness of tone. The English actor, he said, when he goes on the stage to imitate an American, puckers up his vocal strings and gives his voice a "nosey" quality. If you'd let him, Professor Edwards would stick his finger down your throat and show you what causes that.

The coming American standard, Professor Edwards believes, will eliminate many common faults in diction, apparent in every section of the country. The pronunciation of the word "rubber," for instance, will eventually become standardized as it is pronounced by southerners and easterners. The last "r" will never be heard. The southern Illinois "Egyptians," as another example, will use such language as "try a piece of this here now" and "rubber" will eventually be speaking in a totally different manner.

The radio and talkies will standardize our speech rapidly," Professor Edwards said. "The process will be the greatest example of a change in speech in the history of the world. The radio announcer and speaker are beginning to standardize their talk. The movie field is developing the good voice. Many of the actresses who were worshipped in the days of silent pictures are no more. They lost their sex appeal the minute they opened their mouths. Our language, due to these two influences, and the added influence of rapid travel, is undergoing a remarkable change."

The United States, says the professor, is the only large nation that has no standard of speech. The French standard is the Parisian. Germany's standard is that spoken in Berlin. England's is spoken by those persons educated in the public schools and colleges. But in the United States, the dialect of an Arkansas hill-billy may be regarded as being just as correct, technically, as the parlance of a Georgia cracker.

"Language," said Professor Edwards, "is a growing and changing thing. For that reason we can't rely on the dictionary as a final court of appeal. We have no standard."

The growing tendency on the part of radio announcers to perfect their diction has a serious effect on the situation, the professor believes. And the usual sophistication and erudition of the actor is a great help in the movie line. Actors are usually well-educated, widely traveled, and cosmopolites in every sense of the word, according to Professor Edwards. It is good, he believes, that they are to play an important part in setting our standard.

Professor Edwards thinks that the great fault in American speech is a harshness of tone. The English actor, he said, when he goes on the stage to imitate an American, puckers up his vocal strings and gives his voice a "nosey" quality. If you'd let him, Professor Edwards would stick his finger down your throat and show you what causes that.

NEW SALES TAX LAW UPHELD BY NORMAN

Sees Heavier Levies in Event Statute Should Be Held Invalid.

The prospect of an extra session of the legislature which will involve taxes even more burdensome than the present ones was held up Monday by H. C. Norman, state tax commissioner, as the inevitable result if the sales tax law is attacked and held unconstitutional.

"If the necessity should arise for a special session of the legislature . . . in my candid judgment the general assembly would not further burden the farmer and the small home owner, who have carried the load through the years, but would exact the necessary toll from the interests in Georgia that have largely escaped taxation for many years," he said.

Mr. Norman's statement was made after a report was published in Atlanta that an attack would be made against the gross sales tax law in the immediate future. He said that although there have been rumors of such an attack the past six weeks no definite reports have reached his desk. Attorneys who were reported to have been employed by interests opposed to the tax law denied that they had been engaged.

"There has been some talk of attacking the gross sales tax, but to state neither this office nor the state treasury has any official position on the matter," he said. "On the contrary we have had the most cordial expressions of approval and willingness to pay this tax from leading business interests all over Georgia. No popular has this tax proven that a number of Georgia's patriotic businessmen have already sent in checks in payment of this tax."

"While the gross receipts tax was opposed in the general assembly by certain interests, for the most part interests that are contributing very little to the support of the state, there was never a suggestion from an opponent of the measure in either the house or the senate that the act was unconstitutional. The most eminent lawyers in the state have expressed informal opinions that the act is constitutional. In the argument of the income tax measure in Fulton superior court the distinguished lawyers attacking this act took occasion to express their opinion of the constitutionality of the gross receipts tax law. It would be exceedingly unfortunate if the collection of this tax was held up. The state must pay its bills. It must uphold its credit. The gross receipts tax is a most fair and equitable measure. If the necessity should arise for a special session of the general

FORD DEALERS SHOW NEW MODELS TODAY

Atlanta Branch Will Be in Full Operation on New Cars in Two Weeks.

A showing of new bodies for the Model A Ford, each one of which will soon be available in a variety of new colors, is announced for today by the local Ford dealers.

Emphasis was placed on the fact that the car is unchanged mechanically; that nearly 3,000,000 Model A type Fords are now on the highways, proving that they are thoroughly dependable.

The policy of the Ford Motor Company in this respect has been to make minor alterations whenever a new device has shown itself worthy to be included in the mechanical plan of the car, but not to bring out a new car as a whole.

Approximately 200 of the new cars have been sent to the Atlanta branch fully assembled, to be distributed to the dealers throughout the territory.

CAPT. W. W. WEST WAS CONFINED TO BED FOUR MONTHS

Friends of Beloved Atlanta Veteran Didn't Believe He Would Ever Be Well Again — Sargon Triumphs.

The many friends of Captain William W. West, veteran of the War Between the States, and for nearly 25 years an inspector in the construction department of the City of Atlanta, will be glad to know of his recovery.

After the war Captain West taught school many years, and from time to time has engaged actively in religious work. In fact, one of the proud boasts of his ripe old age is that he has preached in every county in Georgia, as a Primitive Baptist. After a long and honorable service in the city government he was retired on a pension a year or so ago. Captain West attributes his recovery to the use of Sargon, the new and scientific formula that has become in 20 months the largest selling medicine of its kind in America.

CAPT. WILLIAM W. WEST.

recovery from a protracted illness that kept him in bed more than four months. On account of his advanced age, 84 years, grave fears were entertained by his family and friends, but he is now up and about in the active way to which his long life has been accustomed.

After the war Captain West taught school many years, and from time to time has engaged actively in religious work. In fact, one of the proud boasts of his ripe old age is that he has preached in every county in Georgia, as a Primitive Baptist. After a long and honorable service in the city government he was retired on a pension a year or so ago. Captain West attributes his recovery to the use of Sargon, the new and scientific formula that has become in 20 months the largest selling medicine of its kind in America.

"Most all my life," he said a few days ago, relating his experience, "I've been healthy, strong and active, until about four or five months ago, when I came down sick with a very bad case of stomach trouble. I was put on a carefully selected light diet, but my stomach seemed to have reached the place where it just couldn't handle any solid food at all. Instead of digesting and giving me nourishment, it would set up a fermentation and fill me with gas, causing severe heart palpitation and so much pressure against my lungs that I could hardly get my breath. Several times I thought I would never be well again in spite of all they could do for me. I was taken off the light diet and put on nothing but milk, but even that was a strain on my stomach, and I continued to suffer with indigestion."

"Although flat of my back all that time, taking no exertion, and getting the best attention, I failed to regain my strength. In addition to the trouble with my stomach, my kidneys bothered me a great deal, especially at night. I don't think I got over an hour's sound sleep at one stretch during the whole time I was confined to my bed. Lying there day after day, getting no better, I couldn't see much hope."

"Then the idea struck me, why not try that Sargon treatment? I'd been reading in the papers where many Atlanta people were getting wonderful benefits from it, and noticed lots of them were old people like myself, so I sent and got a bottle and a bottle of the pills. It may be hard for others to believe, but it's a fact nevertheless, that the first few doses made a marked change in my condition, and from that time forward I improved every day. That was not over six weeks ago, and now after taking five bottles and two bottles of pills I believe anybody that saw me in bed would hardly recognize me for the same man. I am eating three good meals a day without a particle of indigestion. My weight has increased from 145 to 160 pounds. I'm up and about in the way I've always been accustomed to. As to my strength, I'm placing a peach orchard on my place on Route 1 near Atlanta and digging some of the holes myself."

"Of course a man of my age can't expect to be young again, but I think that's doing pretty good for 84 years. I owe it all to Sargon, and in view of what this medicine has done for me I feel it my duty to give my fellow men the benefit of my experience."

The Sargon Man is at Jacobs' Drug Store, 11 Marietta St., where he is meeting the public daily and explaining the merits of this remarkable new medicine. Sargon may be obtained at all Jacobs' Drug Stores throughout Atlanta. (Adv.)

and as soon as these are disposed of, the plant will start assembly work.

J. H. Wood, manager of the branch, says that 800 men will start work Wednesday in preparation for the 1930 line, and that within two weeks the big plant on Ponce de Leon avenue will be in full operation, employing about 1,200 workmen.

The new body types will have a distinctly refreshing appearance. They have all the beauty and charm of contour, line and proportion usually associated with the large cars.

As one looks at them, the first thing that catches the eye is the new radiator. Still retaining the Ford individuality, it is high and narrow, and in excellent style. This, with the higher and longer hood and the shorter cowl, gives the front of the car a distinctly new and pleasing appearance, to which an added touch of brightness comes from the final strip at the juncture of the hood and cowl.

Moulding treatment is new and the fenders are of more generous dimensions, flowing with the lines of the car.

The fenders, much fuller than heretofore, contribute a great deal to the improved appearance of the car. Highlighted at the front, with high crown and sweeping well down over the wheels, the rear fenders flow back in graceful curves to the running boards.

The rear fenders, which also have high crowns, sweep down over the rear wheels to a point lower than formerly.

The head lamps, set higher on a new arched tie rod, also contribute to better appearance.

A new atmosphere of stability is produced by the smaller steel spoke wheels and large tires, which bring the bodies closer to the ground, resulting in a lower center of gravity and consequent increased safety on the road, especially in rounding turns at high speed. Riding quality also is improved.

The most notable changes in the body types have been made in the sedan, the coupe and the open cars.

ATLANTA LAWYERS HONOR JUDGE BELL SATURDAY MORNING

Arrangements are being completed for the program honoring the late Judge George I. Bell, scheduled for 10 o'clock Saturday morning, January 1, at the Fulton county courthouse.

The program will be featured by unveiling of an oil portrait of the noted Georgia jurist to be hung in the court chamber on the sixth floor of the courthouse, formerly occupied by Judge Bell. Sanders McDaniel, president of the Atlanta Bar Association, sponsoring the ceremonies, will deliver the principal address. James A. Branch is chairman of the occasion.

DR. S. W. McALLIE CONFINED TO HOME BY SLIGHT ILLNESS

Dr. S. W. McAllie, state geologist, has been absent from his office for the last few days because of a slight illness which has confined him to his home. He probably will be away from his office the remainder of the week, it was said.

PROPOSED REVISION IN FIRE ORDINANCES TO BE HEARD TODAY

A proposed revision and codification of city ordinances regulating fire hazards will be discussed at a public hearing to be held at 11 o'clock this morning by the board of firemasters at the fire headquarters on Alabama street. The proposed ordinance has been prepared by Chief John Terrell and City Building Inspector C. J. Bowen.

ATLANTA NEGROES PLAN CELEBRATION OF EMANCIPATION

Negroes of Atlanta will celebrate emancipation under the auspices of the Atlanta branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People at the Wheat Street Baptist church at noon Wednesday, it was announced Monday.

Professor Charles H. Wesley, Ph. D., head of the history department of Howard University, Washington, D. C., will be the principal speaker and music will be provided by the negro colleges of Atlanta.

ATLANTA MARINE RECRUITING OFFICE RESUMES ACTIVITY

The local marine corps recruiting station at 79 1/2 South Forsyth street, has reopened after a three-week shutdown. It was announced Monday. Full recruiting is expected to be resumed some time in January, when the age limit for enlistments again will be from 17 to 35. At the present time, only men over 21 are acceptable, but those falling in the wider range are advised that they may apply and be examined and be placed on the waiting list.

GEORGIAN HELD FOR ATTACKING ATLANTA MAN

DANIELSVILLE, Ga., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Lucius Thurmond, of Madison county, today was taken into custody on charges of assault with intent to murder for an alleged attack on L. L. Jones, of Atlanta, last Saturday. Jones is in a hospital at Athens, in serious condition with a gunshot wound.

Thurmond told officers Jones had attempted to force his way into the former's home Saturday morning to call on Thurmond's daughter.

Youth Has Night Frozen Georgia In White House Peaches to Grace At Yule Party White House Menu

BY JOSEPH H. BAIRD.

United News Staff Correspondent. WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—(United News).—Jazz and dashing debutantes tonight replaced the stately menu and dowagers who ordinarily hold sway at White House functions.

The capital's prettiest girls danced over the polished floors of the White House east room in the arms of young army and navy officers and sons of Washington officials as Allan Hoover honored his father's junior military and naval aides with a Christmas dance.

The president's son, home from Harvard, received his guests in the stately blue room and later led them into the east room with Miss Caroline Hyde, a corn belt beauty from Missouri, the debutante daughter of the agriculture secretary, on his arm.

More than 100 guests attended the dance. It was the first time Washington's younger set had stormed the sedate executive mansion since "Princess" Alice Roosevelt entertained brilliantly a quarter of a century ago.

The guests were drawn from every quarter of Washington's official society. Miss Hyde represented the cabinet. Among the diners were Catherine, Alice and Mildred Houston, daughters of the republican national committee chairman; Gerahline, Gerald and Lloyd Free, whose father, Representative Free, of California, is an old friend of the Hoovers; and Catherine Evans, daughter of Representative Evans, of California.

The president's junior aides—eleven from the army, nine from the navy and two from the marine corps, all resplendent in gold braid—were the honor guests.

The east room's great crystal chandeliers threw a brilliant light on the scene. Gay young feet danced to the music of the Marine Corps band supplemented by a private jazz orchestra brought in by Allan Hoover.

Washington's crowded Christmas calendar was filled with social engagements weeks before Allan Hoover's party was announced. At least one debutante dance already had been planned for tonight. Because of this the White House affair was ended early and guests went from there to late entertainments.

Allan Hoover, as the capital's most eligible young bachelor, received numerous invitations this Christmas. He accepted only a few.

BUS OWNERS HELD LIABLE FOR TAXES FOR 1929 QUARTER

Under a ruling of the Georgia public service commission motor, bus and freight truck operators are liable to the new state mileage tax for the last quarter of 1929, it was announced Monday by William B. Harrison, comptroller general.

The commission's ruling was on a question of whether the mileage tax became due on January 1, or after the commission assumed jurisdiction over the bus companies.

The law is that passenger buses of less than 10 capacity are liable to a tax of one-fourth of a cent per mile. Those with a capacity of from 10 to 20 pay one-half a cent and larger buses three-fourths of a cent.

Every bus operator is required to deposit $75 per quarter as surety for the payment of the tax. All buses which have qualified for operation have deposited the bond, it was said.

GAS COMPANY FORCE GUESTS AT DINNER

Employees of the Atlanta Gas Light Company in the sales, shop and store-room departments were guests of the company at a dinner and entertainment Saturday night on the mezzanine floor of the Henry Grady hotel.

Three hundred members of the organization were present with 50 guests. Sales plans and quotas were discussed by D. L. Cash, commercial manager, and M. L. Kane, general manager of the company, the business session being followed by a program of entertainment and dancing.

HEAVY DAMAGES CAUSED BY FIRE IN GEORGIA TOWN

OMEGA, Ga., Dec. 30.—(AP)—The general merchandise store of George M. Robinson was destroyed and the store of John H. Hornbuckle badly damaged by fire here early today. Damage, estimated at several thousands of dollars, was said to have been largely covered by insurance. Moultrie sent a fire truck and three firemen to aid local bucket brigade in fighting the flames.

CHINESE IS FREED

Loo Chung, held on "Dope" Charge, Out on Bond.

Loo Chung, one of a quartet of Chinese taken into custody by local narcotic agents in recent spectacular raids which uncovered alleged opium dens in downtown Atlanta, was released on $2,000 bond Monday to await action by the federal grand jury on charges of violating the Harrison narcotic act. He had been confined in the Fulton county tower since his arrest December 14.

Lee Shuck, Charlie Sang and Sam Lee, remaining members of the group, were released the week before Christmas, a few days following their arrest.

U.S. Cotton Co-op Is Given Support Of State Bodies

That organization of a $30,000,000 co-operative cotton marketing corporation under federal laws would relegate state co-operative organizations to the background was denied Monday by Andrew Flemming, of the Georgia Cotton Co-operative Association.

"The corporation now being formed in Washington has as directors 13 heads of southern co-operatives," he said. "J. A. Conwell, head of the Georgia Co-operative Association, is one of the directors."

The purpose of the new corporation is to make it possible for the state co-operatives to work on a larger scale, to give them broader fields, to eliminate competition between the several state associations, and to facilitate sale, finance and insurance activities of the co-operatives.

Mr. Flemming said the new corporation has the full support of the smaller associations.

HATCHET SLAYING NEAR SOLUTION, SAY OFFICERS

MACON, Ga., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Solution of the hatchet killing of V. H. Walker, 71, was near today in the opinion of authorities who said they would be ready to present the results of their investigation to the Bibb county grand jury when it reconvenes after the holidays.

Three women, Marian Hightower, 23; Elsie Joiner, 20; and Alice Campbell, 21, who worked at a mill near the lumber plant where Walker was employed as a night watchman, and a young man, V. L. Wynn, 19, and two negroes, one of whom is James Hawkins, a preacher, are in custody in connection with the case.

Investigators declined to disclose the name of one of the negroes or explain their theory of the slaying. However, they said it was virtually certain that robbery was not the motive for the slaying. Hawkins is said to have had an argument with Walker shortly before the latter's body was found, but the negro has denied any knowledge of the crime.

HEAVY DAMAGES CAUSED BY FIRE IN GEORGIA TOWN

OMEGA, Ga., Dec. 30.—(AP)—The general merchandise store of George M. Robinson was destroyed and the store of John H. Hornbuckle badly damaged by fire here early today. Damage, estimated at several thousands of dollars, was said to have been largely covered by insurance. Moultrie sent a fire truck and three firemen to aid local bucket brigade in fighting the flames.

CHINESE IS FREED

Loo Chung, held on "Dope" Charge, Out on Bond.

Loo Chung, one of a quartet of Chinese taken into custody by local narcotic agents in recent spectacular raids which uncovered alleged opium dens in downtown Atlanta, was released on $2,000 bond Monday to await action by the federal grand jury on charges of violating the Harrison narcotic act. He had been confined in the Fulton county tower since his arrest December 14.

Lee Shuck, Charlie Sang and Sam Lee, remaining members of the group, were released the week before Christmas, a few days following their arrest.

Special Student Section Reserved At Triangle Play

With more than three-quarters of the reserved seats sold for the performance of "The Golden Dog," opera of the Princeton University Triangle Club, at the Atlanta theater Thursday night, the Princeton Alumni Association of Georgia, sponsors of the Atlanta presentation, have thrown open the second balcony to all students at 50 cents each, Joseph W. Cooper, Jr., chairman of ticket sales, announced Monday night.

Seats in the second balcony are not reserved and will be sold only to students.

"We want as many students as possible to see what Princeton can do in the way of putting on a show as good as any professional producer, and for that reason we are making this offer," Mr. Cooper said. "We still have a few good reserved seats left and a limited number of good unreserved seats in the first balcony and orchestra."

Many reservations have been received from Princeton alumni from other cities in Georgia. Several large parties are coming from Athens, Savannah and Rome.

The Tiger actors and "actresses" were warmly received at Memphis last night in their first appearance in the south. Tonight they will play at Little Rock and tomorrow night they will stop to present "The Golden Dog" at Birmingham on their way to Atlanta.

POLICE OFFICER OF EAST POINT HURT IN CRASH

H. B. Bolton, motorcycle officer, of 500 W. Washington street, East Point, suffered minor injuries in an accident Monday afternoon when his motor hit an auto driven by Donald Lillibick, 712 S. Simms street, East Point.

According to a report at police headquarters, Officer Bolton was traveling on Washington street and was crossing East Point avenue when struck by Lillibick's automobile. He was knocked from his motorcycle and was carried to Grady hospital in an ambulance of A. C. Hemperley, of East Point, where an examination revealed that he was suffering from bruises about the head and face and minus two teeth. He was treated for his injuries and dismissed.

Lillibick is out under bond of $300 pending investigation of the case.

FAREWELL DINNER GIVEN TO BENNET ON LEAVING BOARD

Judge Stanley Bennet, retiring member of the state highway board, bade members of the department farewell at a dinner tendered him Monday night at the Ansley hotel.

Executives of the department and employees joined in expressing their esteem to Judge Bennet. Judge John R. Phillips, the other associate member of the board, presided. He felicitated Judge Bennet upon his meritorious service to the board.

Several extemporaneous speeches, by W. R. Neel, highway engineer, and others, were made congratulating Judge Bennet upon his record and expressing the personal affection his subordinates felt for him.

Neither Colonel Sam Tate, chairman of the board, nor W. C. Vereen, who will succeed Judge Bennet, were able to attend the dinner.

At a special meeting of the highway board Monday morning Judge Bennet was given a silver service by officials and members of the department. Judge Bennet has served on the board since 1919.

MANLEY PREMIUM DIVIDED BETWEEN U. S. AND LAWYERS

Returned insurance premiums, the last known asset of W. D. Manley, amounting to approximately $2,100, were divided between the United States government and members of Manley's defense counsel by a decision handed down by Judge Samuel H. Sibley here Monday. He ruled that the attorneys were entitled to $1,000 for their services and that the government should have the remainder less costs in the case which are not expected to exceed $50. This latter sum will go toward the payment of a fine of $10,000, which was a part of Manley's sentence.

Pink Boll Worm Control Regulations Are To Be Revised

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—(AP)—The secretary of agriculture today announced a revision of the pink boll worm control regulations, incorporating five amendments to the July 1927 regulations, to become effective January 1, 1930.

The most important change was authorization of interstate movement of cotton samples and of compressed and baled lint or linters from regulated areas of western Texas, New Mexico and Arizona, with fumigation, when such samples, lint or linters, have been produced in a county within which, and within five miles of which, no pink boll worm infestation has been found for the two preceding seasons.

Henry Brandt and Son To Discontinue Office Of United States Lines

Henry Brandt and Son, Inc., local agents for the United States Lines, with offices in the city and building, will discontinue their operation of the Atlanta branch today, it was announced Monday.

J. W. Sherman, who is connected with the company's headquarters in Norfolk, Va., has been in the city several days completing the final arrangements for the discontinuance of this office. He stated that the United States Lines would be represented here in the future by a local office of the organization, but that he had not been informed who would have it in charge.

HARDMAN ORDERS CAPITOL CLOSED NEW YEAR'S DAY

Governor L. G. Hardman Monday posted an executive order closing the state capitol Wednesday for New Year's Day. Tuesday and Wednesday of last week were given for Christmas, although several of the offices were closed for longer periods and a holiday quiet pervaded the building during the entire week.

LIONS MEET TODAY

Special New Year's Program Is Arranged.

Members of the Atlanta Lions Club will terminate their activities for 1925 with a regular meeting at 12:30 o'clock today, in the Henry Grady hotel. A special program has been arranged for the occasion.

"Have you got your Rose Bowl Tie?" is the password in Atlanta today. It looks like every man will be wearing one New Year's Day! They say a Rose Bowl Tie brings good luck all year if worn New Year's Day. It's the most beautiful of Ties, so you might try it anyway. Muse's Rose Bowl Ties have become a New Year's tradition. The story that they bring good fortune has come from the public.

TWO PROBLEMS OF FREEDOM.

The unrest in India arising from the failure of the British government to keep its pledges of greater measures of home rule to the people of that vast dependency is growing ominous. It is similar, but more active and acute than the Philippines problem is with our American government. Gandhi and his followers are inaugurating a peaceful boycott and non-taxpaying resistance against the continuance of present British administration actions in their country.

The East Indians are not in conditions that would make any armed revolt possibly successful. They have tried that in other eras only to be cruelly crushed and shot to atoms at the cannon's mouth. So their wiser leaders are employing the more subtle and sapping process of stolid refusal to assist and support the alien regime of British government. They will refuse to elect local administrators, to engage in local legislation, to pay taxes except through distrainers and to buy any British goods that they can do without.

Those are weapons that will give more trouble to the British rulers both in India and in England than guns and cannon. The policy will act like invisible and pungent tear gas upon the politicians and goods-producers of Great Britain, and the balance of the world will watch the outcome of this new-fashioned bloodless warfare with intense curiosity.

Our Filipino dependents can use no such means to coerce us. They cannot worry us with a buyers' boycott, because we would scarcely feel the absence of their trade with us for our goods and we have a large body of folk in this country who are eager to end the free importation of Philippine products that compete with American products. The taxes paid by the Filipinos are devoted to their own upkeep and improvement and to withhold them would be to cut off their noses to spite their own faces.

The serious students of history and the agencies of progressive civilization are substantially agreed that both India and the Philippines should be abandoned as suzerainties and that Great Britain should set up co-operative protective relations with the Indian Free State, as with the Irish Free State, and that the United States should release the Philippine Islands to the control of their people under like relations as exist between this nation and Cuba.

THE PROHIBITION PROBES.

The federal authorities are being subjected to a hot drumfire against their methods, or lack of methods, in prohibition enforcement. Senators have led in the bombardment and the shotguns of dry and wet critics are popping in all parts of the country.

That the prohibition laws are not being enforced with any common degree of adequacy anywhere in the national domain is too notorious for denial.

The claims of professional dry lobbyists that liquor evils are better now than before the enactment of the Volstead law are so plainly contradicted by daily recorded facts as to throw serious doubts upon their sincerity.

If those claims are provable why have they not appealed to the acceptance of such eminent prohibitionists as Senators Harris, Borah, Capper, Norris and Brookhart, to mention no others. They cannot be stigmatized as "wets," pro-liquorists and "traitors to the constitution." Yet they squarely contradict what the McBrides, Dr. Wilsons, Ella Booles and other paid prohibition lobbyists are constantly proclaiming as the divine wisdom and results of our national prohibition policy.

Right now, on the eve of the decennial of the eighteenth amendment the country needs just such honest and courageous exposures of the force that has been played with prohibition enforcement during the past 10 years. The exposures have come with the high authority of the friends of the cause, and not from its known enemies, and hence the surprise and sensation they have caused throughout the country.

President Hoover has been startled out of "watchful waiting," upon his law enforcement commission, and Senator Harris has flushed the commission into stating that it has been ready for some time to report something, and the attorney general, and Dr. Doran, and Undersecretary Mills are all a-flutter to declare that they are busy as tumblebugs with the "stealth" reorganization of their prohibition forces. All of which reveals plainly to the country that there has been a 10 years' waste of time, millions of money, and official buck-passing and dodging to no practical results in satisfying prohibition enforcement. Again the great and grave question arises, why not end all this "noble experimenting," waste, confusion and disappointment by returning the question to the people whether they want present plans to be further attempted, or a new and more promising system of dealing with liquor evils substituted?

WEDNESDAY'S STAR GAME.

Atlanta has an opportunity Wednesday afternoon to show its appreciation of a fine humanitarian work.

Two football teams, representing geographical divisions of the Southern conference, will play a football game at Grant field, the proceeds to go to four hospitals for crippled children located in the south.

Every family in Atlanta should be represented at the game. It is an opportunity to see a fine football contest in which the best players of the south will take part. It will afford a liberal education in football.

Strong legs of the football players will run that weak legs may walk. Every cent of the proceeds, above actual expenses, goes to the hospitals. The coaches and the players are donating their services gratis. They have unselfishly given of their holidays and their time to come here for the game.

The healing of crippled children, the straightening of small backs, remaking distorted limbs and rebuilding muscles and bone of the helpless is a spiritual work that should not lack of aid.

Atlantans should not miss this opportunity to aid in the facilitating of that work. Attendance at the game Wednesday afternoon will be a contribution toward that end.

THE BUCKING FRENCHMEN.

The French note setting forth that government's views concerning the scope and objectives of the forthcoming London naval conference will naturally receive the most serious consideration of the other powers that are to engage in the parley. They include the United States, Great Britain, Japan and Italy.

The conference was agreed upon for the purpose of limiting naval armaments to economical, but safe, proportions and to make that reduction a further and stronger incentive to international peace. It is certainly with such spirit that this country, Great Britain and Japan are preparing to confer.

Those high objectives do not seem to appeal in any imperative sense to the government leaders of France.

The better balanced statesmen of the nations at large will hope that France will not adopt "highfalootiness," but accord with world opinion favoring every safe pacific program.

If the Frenchmen, led by Briand and Tardieu, are fully set against a five-power agreement upon equitable naval limitations, they should say so in plain words and stay away from the London conference. They can have no justification for going into it and bailing-up its proceedings with their political demands and their claims of plenary defense against undeveloped enemies. If they honestly believe their welfare wholly dependent upon the support and decisions of the League of Nations, they should turn their backs upon London and their faces toward Geneva.

When the conferees at London know certainly that France is out of their association they can proceed to consider whatever agreement appears wise to them and safe for their countries, or they can decide that a four or three-power pact would not serve the wishes and needs of their nations, and adjourn sine die.

Whatever else happens, there should at least be a general understanding that France shall not be permitted to be the next to plunge the civilized nations into another universal war.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

The King's Boys.

For several years the royalists in France have concentrated their efforts upon winning the youth studying at the universities. The result is that the Latin quarter in Paris which is not solely the hang-out of artists and bohemians, but also the district in which the Sorbonne and several other institutions of learning are located, is preponderantly monarchistic at present. Each year along the royalists call mass meetings of the students at the beginning of the term and call upon them to become Camels du Roi (king's henchmen). This year at a meeting in the Salle Bullier, it was Maxime Real del Sarte, famous sculptor, who exclaimed in the presence of 10,000 students: "Come over to us while there are still risks involved in fighting for the king. Within ten years the title of Camelot du Roi will become a title of honor. For within a decade, France will have a king on the throne." Audacious and optimistic prophecy. The students in answer to Del Sarte's appeal rose in their seats and shouted "Vive le Roi!" and for once the Hymn Royale thundered through the old Latin quarter. No less than 5,000 gendarmes accompanied the students' procession as it marched down the Boulevard Montparnasse. Every "Camelot" carried a club, and the military formation they kept, showed that there must have been some drilling going on. One of the most exciting moments at the mass meeting came when several professors climbed on to the platform to expound their reasons why they embraced the cause of the king. Georges Bernanos, famous writer, also joined the movement in public. The ovation these men received was simply delicious.

Vampires.

A human vampire in Düsseldorf has lured his nineteenth victim to death and then following his habitual procedure he has written to the police about the excessively brutal manner in which he had committed the murder, asking a map of the city and a list of the locations of the bodies of those beings of which Bram Stoker wrote such a hair-raising novel. Stoker called them the undead. Voltaire also studied their case and drew the conclusion that vampires existed solely in such half-living countries as Moravia, Karelia and Wallachia, lands of the east, where the sun never shines, than the south pole is in ours. "Vampires," said Voltaire, "were restless dead human beings, who left their tombs at night, changed their shape into huge bats and proceeded to suck the blood of the living." Voltaire remarked that he knew certain individuals who did not require to be dead first to become blood-sucking creatures. The ancients believed in vampires, too, he maintained. Why else was there always food placed in the tombs of the dead? The vampire, he said, was the most significant that kings were buried with the largest amount of food. Was it, so he asks, because they are the big eaters? The vampire, he said, was the most significant that kings were buried with the largest amount of food. Was it, so he asks, because they are the big eaters?

Montmartre

These Days.

If your Parisian seldom visits Montmartre, leaving that region entirely to the tourist who imagines he sees the real wicked Paris in the gaudy dance halls and nightclubs of the district, tradition will have it that the bourgeois Parisian families takes his wife out there at least once and that you, too, should do so. It is a way to celebrate Christmas for him is to eat, drink, be merry and feel decidedly uncomfortable in a tuxedo or dress of tulle and lace. The Parisian, when he is in Montmartre, is not in the mood to be serious. He is in the mood to be merry. He is in the mood to be merry. He is in the mood to be merry.

The conference was agreed upon for the purpose of limiting naval armaments to economical, but safe, proportions and to make that reduction a further and stronger incentive to international peace. It is certainly with such spirit that this country, Great Britain and Japan are preparing to confer.

Those high objectives do not seem to appeal in any imperative sense to the government leaders of France.

The better balanced statesmen of the nations at large will hope that France will not adopt "highfalootiness," but accord with world opinion favoring every safe pacific program.

If the Frenchmen, led by Briand and Tardieu, are fully set against a five-power agreement upon equitable naval limitations, they should say so in plain words and stay away from the London conference. They can have no justification for going into it and bailing-up its proceedings with their political demands and their claims of plenary defense against undeveloped enemies. If they honestly believe their welfare wholly dependent upon the support and decisions of the League of Nations, they should turn their backs upon London and their faces toward Geneva.

When the conferees at London know certainly that France is out of their association they can proceed to consider whatever agreement appears wise to them and safe for their countries, or they can decide that a four or three-power pact would not serve the wishes and needs of their nations, and adjourn sine die.

Whatever else happens, there should at least be a general understanding that France shall not be permitted to be the next to plunge the civilized nations into another universal war.

If You Know the Machine Is Perfect, Why Imagine Faults in Parts You Can't See?

By Robert Quillen

Did the Creator of the universe make mistakes? The inventor at work on a new machine employs the whole of his knowledge and skill to eliminate friction and lost motion and achieve perfection of operation with a minimum expenditure of energy. He does his utmost. And if the machine contains a flaw or is imperfect, in operation, common sense offers but two explanations. The inventor made a mistake, or his work was marred by some influence he did not control.

If a mere man should plan a world, he would do his utmost to arrange all things well. Each unit would serve some useful purpose. Each detail would harmonize with the whole, and all things would work together for good.

And though some arrangements might seem unjust or wasteful or unnecessary to an onlooker who did not understand, the plan would be as perfect as a mere man could make it.

If that is true—and the truth of it is obvious—who can doubt that the Creator of the universe possessed sufficient intelligence to order all things well?

If man would do his utmost, is it reasonable to suppose that the Creator would do less?

Power and intelligence beyond human comprehension are revealed in the completed work. Is it reasonable to suppose that power and intelligence so infinite should blunder or fail of intended perfection? There were no errors. Common sense rejects and resents the suggestion that errors were possible.

And yet men suffer cruelly and die. Here, surely, is a fault in the plan.

But, no, if the guide book is correct and the traveler goes astray, it is obvious that he did not follow directions. If death is part of a perfect plan, and yet seems terrible, it is obvious that man misunderstands its nature or by his own fault changes its nature. The savage, living simply in sunshine and fresh air, is free of nearly all diseases that afflict civilized men. It is obvious, then, that man's folly has changed the nature of death.

It should be the sleep of the weary. The will to live should weaken as the body weakens, and exhausted flesh should relax in death without pain. And yet, you say, there is sorrow for those who live on and sorrow mars perfection.

But again your err. Is an eclipse of the sun an evil because ignorant men are terrified by it? People sorrow because they do not understand. The plan is perfect, and death is part of the plan. It cannot be an evil; and since the good of it is hidden, it must be good beyond our comprehension.

Health Talks

By Dr. William Brady.

THE TON DOCTOR RACKET IS TIGHT ON TONSILS.

So far as we know, the appendix, the tonsils and the wisdom teeth have no essential function and are of no use to modern man. Some barbers who have changed over into the drugless healing business hypothesize a function for the appendix—it becomes the oil can of the alimentary tract—and maybe a minority of adults over 20 have their appendix removed, or two, though for all that they don't know what to do with the annoying third molar when they've got them, further than to let the dentist pull them out with him. As for the tonsils—

Now I say quite frankly we don't know what the tonsils have any function, nor do we know what they have. Of course, measles, physicians, physiologists, anatomists, scientists, you and I, intelligent folk generally. The ideas promoted by quick healers, the use of mail-order "health" bunks about this should not detain the sensible inquirer long. It is not unreasonable to assume a pharyngeal function for the tonsils, but the lymphoid tissue composing the greater part of the tonsils and the pharyngeal tonsil (called "adenoids" when enlarged) and occurring again in the wall of the appendix around the opening of the mouth of that vestigial remnant of the digestive tract, the appendix, is a pharyngeal function. I mean the scavenger function of the white blood corpuscles and the cells of lymphoid tissue, and when these cells are invaded by bacteria invading the tissue, but this function of lymphoid tissue is at best a feeble excuse for the preservation of these useless tonsils when they are infected or bacterial invasions have gained a foothold.

The tonsils have no essential function in youth or adulthood is no more reasonable for removing them in any case than is the uselessness of the appendix a just cause for operation in that quarter.

The present-day nose and throat specialists remove even a minor irritant of regular physicians, do not advise just too many tonsil operations without just cause or provocation. An excellent review of the tonsils, the scientific report of Albert S. Welch, M. D., of the findings in pathological examinations made on the tonsils of 100 patients who were operated on by a public clinic in Kansas City. Our over-ready operators and "clique" chiefs who operate in whole and in part on the basis of a "tonsil" of some nurse or even a school teacher (little tin doctors) ought to hang their heads in shame at these statistics. Dr. Welch found that 71 per cent of all these tonsils had never been seriously affected. In other words, more than two-thirds of all the tonsil operations in this country are unnecessary. In this, it must be told, in the operations which were possibly justified, large pieces of throat muscle were cut out along with the tonsils. A crowd of 100 per cent of cases. The report does give further clues as to the complete removal of tonsils at these hospitals. The report states that out portions of throat muscle it is fairly obvious that he can't be sure just what he is or is not removing.

Downey was in the fatal shooting Christmas Day of Eugene F. Downey Jr., suspected run runner, will be arraigned in city court here tomorrow on charges of second degree manslaughter.

As the men, Randolph Thompson, Asa Ennes and Orville La Grant, were already in confinement, Judge Frank W. Randall was not expected to sign the warrants until just previous to the arraignment.

The funeral of Downey, who was wounded fatally when the boat in which he was riding in Buffalo harbor failed to halt on Buffalo of the coast guardsmen, was held today at the funeral home of the church, where nearly 1,000 filled the church and stood about outside.

A demand that the guardsmen be held in $5,000 bail each following the capture of beer and light wines "not intoxicating in fact."

With word from the White House that President Hoover was not going to be drawn into the public discussion of the 10-year-old prohibition law, it was said at the same place that the president today received a letter from Senator Borah of Idaho, who has so severely attacked present enforcement methods.

This letter is understood to follow up the public condemnation made on Saturday by the Idaho dry champion with suggestions for remedies. Neither the White House nor the office of Senator Borah would make public the letter.

After the week-end bombardment of the administration enforcement by Senator Borah, his letter threatened to provide fuel for another outbreak in the warfare between the other republican prohibition leaders in the senate and the outspoken Idahoan.

Senator Jones, of Washington, a republican spokesman who has appealed for united support of the Hoover administration by the drys, called on the law enforcement commission and after a two-hour session announced he would have something to say later in the week.

The next outbreak in the prohibition discussion may await the promised report of the president's law enforcement commission, however. That report will be made as soon as the house approves the senate's resolution for the appointment of a joint congressional committee to study methods of reorganizing the prohibition enforcement machinery.

The declaration by Senator Borah that "open saloons" are running throughout the country and that a "scandal" exists in the administration of the alcohol permit system has gone unchallenged. Borah has indicated that if the prohibition support comes up for debate when the senate convenes next week, he will be ready to take a prominent part.

Representative Schaffer, republican, Wisconsin, joined in the day's statement making from that wing of the capital with the expression that "the leaders are comparable to rats leaving a sinking ship." He said the drys are attempting to open up a number of old mass barrels, which are charged with enforcing the federal prohibition laws.

This was countered by a statement by Representative Kelly, republican, Pennsylvania, appealing for support of President Hoover and declaring that "the prohibition law is a proven fact of the determination of the people as a whole to retain the 18th amendment and to secure its enforcement."

He said the "task now confronting us is to follow the leadership of a president who recognizes his responsibility to the government and to the Americans to assist him."

The department of justice announced that an appeal would be made to the supreme court to uphold the conviction of Alfred E. Norris, of New York, on charges of conspiracy to transport liquor between Philadelphia and New York. The circuit court of appeals has reversed the conviction of Norris in the district court.

Coast guard headquarters Rear Admiral Frederick C. Billard, the commandant, was standing by his men who killed three members of a crew taken ashore by a motor launch from Newport, R. I., Sunday. He described the work against liquor smuggling as the most difficult that has ever confronted the coast guard.

"We are, and we have gone about this thing strictly within the law," the commandant said. "If anybody gets hurt, we regret that. But we cannot help it if they violate a fundamental law of the country which we are charged with enforcing."

Senator Borah was inclined to sympathize with Admiral Billard's view and the action of his men off Newport "if the facts are as they were reported."

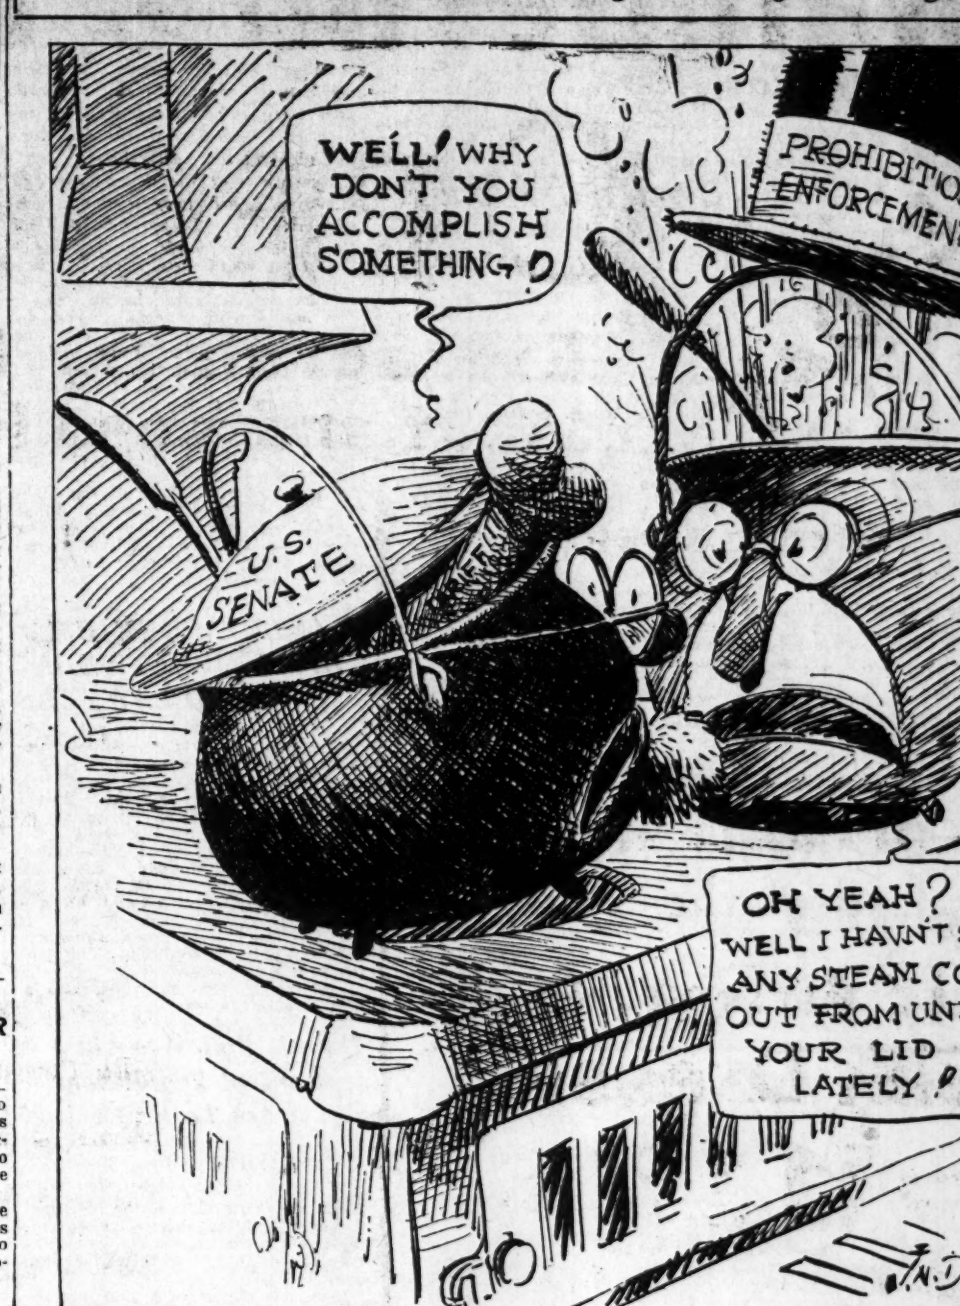

Representative Cochran urged light wines and beer as a farm relief proposition. He said "this would mean nearly a billion dollars in taxes to the government, money now going into the pockets of the bootlegger."

"The farmers would again have a market for their cereals," he argued, "and there would be no surplus. The farmers' bankrupt condition, dates back to the time prohibition was forced upon the people of the country."

New York Police Connect Magistrate With Leaders Of Huge Narcotic Ring

Find Vitale's Number in Records of Four; Letters Mention Judge Honored at Hold-Up Dinner.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—(AP)—City and federal investigations into the alleged connection between Magistrate Albert Vitale and the "artichoke king," with criminal elements took three distinct turns today.

Four men, arrested by federal authorities as members of a nationwide narcotic ring and said by the United States attorney to have possessed Magistrate Vitale's telephone number on their "frequently called" list, were held in heavy bail on indictments charging violation of the federal laws.

The Bronx county grand jury returned indictments against seven men who are alleged to have participated in the hold-up of the dinner party given for Magistrate Vitale December 7.

Police Commissioner Whalen, at the departmental trial of Arthur Johnson, demoted detective, introduced a letter alleged to have been written by a member of the Vitale party hold-up gang, in which both the magistrate and Terranova's names were mentioned.

The federal indictments were returned against Louis Saccorona, who was held in $50,000 bail with his brother, Frank Saccorona; Frank Torco, held in $15,000 bail, and "Buddie" Jones, $10,000 bail.

Charles H. Tuttle, the United States attorney, charges that the Saccorona brothers headed three of the largest narcotic rings in the country and that Louis frequently has boasted that he could fill orders up to $2,000,000 worth within 24 hours, because "he was very well protected by the police."

Cards bearing the legend "numbers frequently called" were found in Saccorona's possession, he said, which listed the names and telephone numbers of gangsters, gunmen, racketeers and "names of persons in another class." It was one of these cards that Mr. Tuttle announced that Magistrate Vitale's name and telephone number were found.

Apply This Once And Kill the Itch

A new preparation known as "Silticide," being a liquid, thoroughly penetrates the skin, going into every pore, crevice and wrinkle where parasites hide, and kills every one of these parasites with one application, in thirty minutes.

Silticide is immediately effective in destroying parasitic itch (scabies) and is sold by all druggists at 60c, or sent direct upon receipt of price. Silticide Co., Inc., Commerce, Ga.—(adv.)

Magistrate Vitale's name and telephone number were found.

Eleven other of the 18 men arrested with the Saccorona in the said hold-up in which the federal agents charged both liquor and narcotics were sold "openly and brazenly" were held in bail ranging from $1,000 to $25,000 for later hearings.

Joseph Bravate, 22, alleged ring leader, was one of the seven indicted for the Vitale dinner party hold-up. The names of the other six were not revealed.

Bravate was arrested a few days following the hold-up on information supplied by Johnson, who said he recognized Bravate on the street as he was about to enter a barber shop. Magistrate Vitale went before the grand jury and it is said that he and other members of the dinner party also identified Bravate.

Commissioner Whalen's letter introduced at Johnson's trial on charges of conduct unbecoming an officer, brought a mysterious signature "M. C." into the tangle of amazing developments already made in the police investigation of the Vitale hold-up.

The letter, the commissioner said, was taken from Zaccari Savino, one of the three guests at the magistrate's dinner party arrested on charges of complicity in the hold-up.

Savino and the other two arrested dinner guests, Daniel Iannascia and Joseph Catania, refused to reveal the identity of "M. C." when they appeared in police lineup today. Commissioner Whalen also declined to give out any information on the matter.

"It is all fixed up and Danny got out of the red in your place," the letter read. "He will get rid of that other one. Get ready to get away at any time. Get in touch at once with Vitale and tell him we will take care of that other matter at once and not to worry. Don't do any talking over the telephone. Will tell you why when I see you. We got another guy to take the rap if necessary. Tell Ciro to give you the grand for me because they, the bulls, are watching him. Come down about 3 in the morning."

Police charge Terranova arranged the dinner party for Vitale and staged the hold-up to get a killer's contract from a Chicago gangster who was a guest. The contract, police allege, called for the slayings of Frankie Yale and Frank Marlow, racketeers whose murders have not been solved.

Johnson, when questioned at his hearing today, admitted that "about 25 per cent" of the guests at the party were criminals.

Divorce No Cure.

KENO, Nev., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Ten minutes after being granted divorces here today, Thomas Boyd, author, and Mrs. Ruth Fitch Bartlett applied for a marriage license. Mrs. Bartlett obtained a divorce from Walter Scott Bartlett, New York banker, who was granted a decree of divorce from Margaret Woodward Smith Boyd, whom he married in 1920.

Bloomberg, district sales manager, is shown in the inset at the left, and on the right is Philip Kalech, who presided at the toilet article department meeting.

Representatives of the Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Company's soap and toilet article departments in the Atlanta territory were here Monday attending the annual sales conference for this district.

The meetings of the soap department were held at the Wincoff hotel and were presided over by A. E. Bloomberg, district sales manager. Sessions of the toilet article department were held at the Piedmont hotel, presided over by Philip Kalech.

Approximately 40 representatives of this international company attended the combined meetings, salesmen being present from the Carolinas, Georgia, Florida, and East Tennessee.

In attendance at the toilet article meetings was B. M. Dunn, divisional manager of the Atlanta toilet article department. At the soap meeting was W. B. Howard, assistant to the general sales manager; C. P. Duncan, in charge of the Octagon laundry department, and A. E. McCann, divisional sales manager.

Plans for both departments for next year were covered fully by those presiding, and although results in all departments have been entirely satisfactory to the company, present indications point to the greatest year in its history.

Three Dictionaries Needed For America, Savant Claims

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Three different types of dictionaries are needed in order that we may get the full meaning out of our American language, Sir William Craigie of the University of Chicago, here to attend the convention of the Modern Language Association of America, said today.

In addition to the usual dictionary there should be dictionaries of American slang and dialect, he said.

Sir William has come to America from England to supervise the work on a dictionary of American dialect to contain all the dialect words added to the English language since a few years after the Pilgrim Fathers landed in Plymouth.

Work on the dictionary has been in progress for four years, special workers and college graduate students gathering material from all parts of the country.

Of all sections of the United States, he said, the region west of the Mississippi between the years 1810 and 1850 has made probably the richest addition to the American language. The lumber camps and the gold mines probably were the greatest contributors. Many of their words, like "bedrock," for instance, technical at first, after a time came into common usage.

Most of our slang words have high mortality, he said. But some of them make permanent contributions to the language.

An insight into the partially obscure 32 years in the life of Samuel Pepps, famous English diarist, after his wife, "Poor Wretch" had died, was revealed at the convention today by Professor James H. Hanford of Western Reserve University.

Professor Hanford said that from a study he has made, Mistress Mary Skinner, who lived with Pepps during that time, was his "chief comfort" rather than just a maid in the Pepps household as heretofore believed. Professor Hanford has drawn this conclusion from his discovery of correspondence between Pepps and Skinner, which was dug out of the Bodleian at Oxford, England. The Skinner family, the letters reveal, depended quite extensively on the generosity of Pepps because of his relation with Mary.

GEORGIA NEGRO ATTORNEY KILLED IN NORTH CAROLINA

GOLDSBORO, N. C., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Foster B. Pettie, about 55, prominent negro attorney of Savannah, Ga., was killed today in an automobile accident a few miles south of Goldsboro.

Pettie and a daughter, who was riding with him, were both thrown clear of their machine. His skull was crushed and he died instantly. His daughter received only minor injuries. They were on their way to their home in Savannah after visiting relatives in Washington.

Officers said the Pettie car was side-swiped by an automobile driven by Donnie Flowers, of Mount Airy, N. C. They said Flowers, who was attempting to pass the Pettie car, swerved into it when crowded by the approach of a machine from the opposite direction. Flowers was uninjured.

The body of Pettie was held at Goldsboro until investigation of the accident was completed. His daughter was at the home of Dr. C. Dillard, Jr.

OWN GUN IN HANDS OF NEGRO KILLS MEMPHIS OFFICER

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Seven city employees figured in tragedy here today, a policeman being killed by a negro, and six firemen being seriously injured in a traffic collision.

Search for the unidentified negro who shot down Patrolman Walter H. McEwen in an alley turned to Arkansas with reports that a negro resembling the slayer was seen to board a westbound Frisco freight train.

McEwen was killed with his own gun, the negro taking it from him in a scuffle which followed the officer's efforts to arrest the negro. The only eye-witness was a negro woman who gave an excellent description of the killer.

All policemen who could be spared from routine work were put on the case and made many arrests, but the slayer was not among them.

Heads of the police department issued "shoot-to-kill" orders.

MERGER MAY OBVIATE STUTZ BANKRUPTCY

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 30.—(United News).—The Stutz Motor Car Company, one of the nation's first automobile manufacturers, faced involuntary bankruptcy today when its creditors filed suit to collect back bills.

The Stutz company, famed first for its Green Bug racing cars, back in 1912, later for the former in Stutz stock on the New York Stock Exchange, and finally for its manufacture of one of the most luxurious lines of passenger cars produced in the United States, has not been operating for the past several months.

The only way the firm can avert bankruptcy, admitted Mr. E. Hamilton, treasurer, is for consummation of a proposed merger with one of the nation's leading automobile manufacturers. Hamilton said he expected an announcement would be made tomorrow whereby the taking over of all Stutz assets by a large passenger car manufacturer would be revealed.

Today's suits were filed by the E. C. Atkins Company, the Hide Leather and Belting Company, the Vonnegut Hardware Company and the Standard Automobile Parts Company. The first three filed a creditors' bill totaling $2,175,98, while the latter asked appointment of a receiver.

WALL STREET EXPECTED MOVE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—(United News).—Involuntary receivership for Stutz Motor Company was expected in Wall Street today and no surprise was evinced when the announcement was made from Indianapolis.

The stock on the New York Curb Exchange, however, broke to a new low at $1 a share after touching $3.25. It closed at $1.58, off $1.18 per share.

Earlier this year Stutz had touched $24. In 1920, when Allan Ryan engineered a corner in the stock, it touched $724. Shorts had to pay nearly $600 per share to extricate themselves from the tangle, it was said.

A few weeks ago, the company reported that October, 1929, exceeded business of any similar month in its history, with orders 31 per cent higher than any previous October, retail deliveries 52 per cent higher, and exports 113.2 per cent higher.

KING, DICTATOR UNTANGLE TRAFFIC JAM IN MADRID

MADRID, Dec. 30.—(AP)—King Alfonso played the part of a traffic policeman for a little while yesterday afternoon with Premier Primo de Rivera as his chief assistant. The king and dictator between them quickly untangled a traffic jam which had the regular policemen baffled.

The king's automobile was caught in a jam on the fashionable Prado drive when another car broke down causing congestion and a snarl of hundreds of automobiles and carriages. The king stepped out and took charge.

Then appeared another volunteer of forceful men who proved to be the premier, also caught in the same jam near the king. The two gave orders, made regular traffic signals and soon restored traffic. They then entered their respective automobiles and resumed their drive with the warm thanks of the regular traffic policemen.

GREAT GRANDNIECE OF JAMES MADISON MARRIES ENGINEER

WAYNESVILLE, N. C., Dec. 30.—(United News).—Dorothy Madison Thomas, Waynesville, great-grandniece of James Madison, fourth president of the United States, today married Frank Hodges, government flood control engineer, at the Waynesville Episcopal church.

The young couple will make their temporary home at Williams, Conn., where Hodges is stationed.

JOHNSTON TO DINE GRADY HOSPITAL VISITING STAFFS

Visiting staffs at Grady hospital tonight will be tendered an appreciation dinner by Superintendent Steve R. Johnston. More than 100 invitations have been mailed out. The affair, which is an annual custom, will be held at 7:15 o'clock at the hospital nurses' home.

U. S. CRIME INCREASE IS NATURAL GROWTH

Vollmer, of Chicago, U. S. Says Ratio Is Direct to Population.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Crime has been increasing in the United States in exact ratio to the increase of population, regardless of all talk of "crime waves" and reports of crime commissions, August Vollmer, criminologist of the University of Chicago, and for many years chief of police of Berkeley, Cal., today told the American Political Science Association convention.

Mr. Vollmer asserted that, according to all available statistics, the criminal population is proportionately the same as it has been at any time in the past 50 years, and that the proportion of crime was about the same.

The criminologist, discussing crime prevalence, said that the average policeman is not trained for his job. "When a good man gets a chiefship or police commissionership, it is purely an accident," he affirmed. "It is usually because he happens to be not only a good policeman but a good politician. A man is not likely to hold his job long."

Vollmer said that a comparison of crime conditions in America and Europe was not fair, because European cities have a more homogeneous population, fewer automobiles, more fixed standards and a better defined community life.

DR. E. P. JOHNSON IS PAID TRIBUTE BY CHURCH BODIES

Tribute to the life and work of the late Dr. E. P. Johnson, pastor of Reed Street Baptist church, and the adoption of resolutions summarizing these sentiments marked the joint meeting of the church co-operation committee, white and colored, held at the Butler Street Y. M. C. A. at noon Monday.

Dr. Johnson, who for 30 years been president of the colored committee on church co-operation and in that capacity had rendered notable service in the promotion of interracial good will and welfare in the city of Atlanta. A large part of Monday's meeting was devoted to appreciative expressions from fellow members of the two committees.

Funeral services for Dr. Johnson, who for 27 years was pastor of Reed Street Baptist church, will be held at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning at the church, where the body will lie in state from tonight until the hour of services.

Dr. Johnson, who was 80 years of age, and one of the leading negro ministers of this section of the state, died Saturday night at his residence, 604 Terry street.

Burial will be in Lincoln Memorial park and the Atlanta Baptist ministers' Union will attend in a body.

DOCTORS BELIEVE CHILD NEAR END OF COMA STATE

What physicians at Grady hospital believe are signs of returning consciousness were manifested there Monday night by Sarah Eleanor Dutton, when she cried for the first time since taken there October 12.

At midnight Monday the child passed her 1,000th hour of unconsciousness. She was removed to the hospital where she was struck down by a motorcycle near the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Dutton, of Riverside.

Last Saturday the child for the first time was given nourishment through her mouth. She had been fed through her nostrils. The unusual length of time in which she has maintained life in a state of coma has been a puzzle to physicians.

BROKER SUICIDES BY INHALING GAS IN NEW YORK HOME

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Ernest M. Roche, broker, son of the late Spencer Roche, who was a deacon at the Garden City (Long Island) cathedral, committed suicide today by inhaling gas in a Lexington avenue rooming house. Fully clothed and wearing spats and gloves, his body was found in a room he had rented three days ago. He left a note requesting that John J. Mallon, an undertaker, be called to identify his body.

2,000,000 WITHOUT WORK IN GERMANY AT END OF YEAR

BERLIN, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Approximately 2,000,000 persons, of whom more than 1,400,000 are receiving public relief, are without work in Germany at the year's end.

This represents an increase of about 900,000, compared with the beginning of 1929.

The reasons given for this huge total are the concentration of industry, the bankruptcy of numerous firms and the difficulty of finding work for the rising generation.

Alexander Named Head of National Grid Coaches Association; Southerners Think Defense Able To Halt Northern Drive; Major Neyland Develops His Defense To Stop Cardinals

While mentioning the open-handed, free-hearted way in which players are giving their services to the all-star football game, in which coaches and officials are working without remuneration, in which theater managers and business men are giving time and money for entertainment of the guests within our gates, do not overlook a donation made by R. J. Spiller.

Mr. Spiller operates the concessions at Grant field as well as at the baseball park. On a day when the stands are filled he clears a comfortable sum on the sale of cushions.

Mr. Spiller offered, through Bobby Jones, one of the directors of the Crackers and chairman of the concessions committee for the game, to give the cushions for the New Year's Day game to the committee free. That means that something like $1,500, maybe more, will be added to the fund for the four crippled children's hospitals.

It is possible that no one man is giving so much actual money to the cause.

REASONABLE FEES.

Chairman Jones of the concessions also advises that prices will be ultra-reasonable on all goods vended that day. No gouge will mar the pleasure of the occasion. The programs, by the way, will be distributed free at the gates.

GOOD WILL VALUE.

One of the coaches was philosophizing over the less obvious aspects of the game last night. He said:

"You know, the greatest thing about this game aside from the humanitarian angle, is the fact that football players from different states have been thrown together and have learned to like each other."

"In spite of the fine sportsmanship that football teaches, a college boy cannot help but carry away memories from a football game of rough handling and sometimes harsh words. Things are done and said in the heat of a game that never would have occurred otherwise."

"The boys on each squad had never met each other before except possibly in the midst of a game. Maybe their acquaintance had been limited to a hard block and a couple of hard words. Now new friendships have sprung up and they look on each other as 'just folks.'"

"I know of at least one star player who was considered all over the south as a holy terror on the football field and a disagreeable cuss from away back. Now the boys have found he is the most likable chap of all."

"This game will do for conference football what the annual meeting of the coaches has done for the coaches."

"It will be of inestimable value in building character and broadening viewpoints. The conference ought to compel its members to participate in such a game as this every year."

BIG ED BROWN.

In the midst of an atmosphere of football comes a word of baseball gossip from Dan Michalove, former Cracker owner, who cannot get the old game out of his system save in letters to this department.

Among other things Dan sends along a word of praise for Ed Brown, the outfielder just bought from Toledo by Johnny Dobbis for the Crackers.

Michalove says: "Big Ed Brown is going to make the Crackers a great player. He is an exceptional man for the Southern league and Dobbis is to be congratulated on signing him. He will be the best defensive player Atlanta has had since 'Mule' Haas."

"Brown is a fine fly-chaser and can run well for a big man. He will show the fans how to play outfield and hit. Only his throwing arm keeps him out of the majors. His peg is not quite up to big league standard."

"Brown will hit a lot of home runs but not many in Atlanta, as he is not a pull hitter. He is a straightaway hitter and will get many four base trips on his long hits in other parks."

COACH ALEXANDER.

W. A. Alexander, of Georgia Tech, has been elected president of the National Football Coaches' Association.

Coaches can extend no higher honor than that; it is a tribute from the profession that is at once a professional estimate of The Man's ability.

Many a time and oft Atlanta newspapermen have been asked by folks here at home "How does Coach Alexander rank nationally; is he well known, etc., etc.?" They patiently have tried to convey the idea that Coach Alexander was one of the leading coaches in America and that he stood very high in the councils of the profession.

Fortunately Georgia Tech officials knew it. And they stuck to Coach Alex through the lean years and the fat years.

Home town fans being closely in contact with Coach Alex lacked perspective in estimating his ability and his standing. His election should clear all that up. The Man deserves all the honors that have come his way.

Last Rites Held For Turf Veteran

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 30.—(AP)—More than 300 horsemen today paid final tribute to the memory of William Dondas, racing secretary of the Miami Jockey Club, who died suddenly Friday night.

Regular mass was said over Dondas' body prior to its shipment tonight in his former home in St. Louis.

Dondas had been associated with racing since he became racing secretary at the track at Latonia, Ky., 16 years ago.

Garden Is After Griffith For Bout

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Madison Square Garden's efforts to select a suitable opponent for Jack Sharkey in the Miami, Fla., show February 27 may wind up this week with Tuffy Griffith decided upon as the logical nominee for the honor.

It was understood in boxing circles here that Griffith already has come to an agreement with the Garden Corporation but that Sharkey is not particularly anxious to meet the Bronx City slugger who beat Johnny Risko here last Friday night.

William F. Carter, Tom McArdle and other officials of the Garden Corporation are planning to confer with Sharkey in Boston on Friday and an agreement may be reached at that time.

SUPPORTERS OF RED TEAM DEFY BLUES

Ask How Northern Eleven Will Gain Against Bachman's Defense.

By Ralph McGill.

It is just an old Scandinavian custom, I suppose, for anything with the tag "southern" on it to speak with a drawl, walk slowly but work like you know what when the occasion demands.

Consequently those who have been peering with a critical eye at the southern football team, which plays the "Danyankees" here on Wednesday in the all-star conference football game, are doing a bit of deep thinking. Guiding the old gray matter, so to speak.

The odds remain definitely in favor of the northern outfit. It happens that the Blues have seven Tennessee players, their two ends, a tackle, a guard and what is much more important, oh, yes, more, they have three backfield men: Bobby Dodd, Gene McEver and Buddy Hackman. They also have "Shipwreck" Kelly, from Old Kentucky; Drury, from the same old state, and no end of stars from the same old state.

They have the weight. Gobs of weight. Especially in the line where Josh Cody's two big bears are at the guard posts. They have it at the tackles and they have it at the ends. Come to think of it, they have it everywhere.

NEVER GIVE UP.

With all that the southern squad hasn't given up. The boys went out yesterday morning and in the afternoon they ran them. In the afternoon they ran them with a lot of what the ball players call "the old gin and ginigar." Which means they were picking them up and putting them down. They were sweating profusely and looking as determined as 11 men with a purpose can look. Charlie Bachman, of Florida; Harry Mehre, of Georgia, and Van Fleet, of Florida, were working with the boys. It consisted of seeing that they did it correctly. There wasn't much to show them and the coaches didn't bother the boys with a lot of stuff about how to charge in the line or how to take a pass from center. After looking at the southern team in action during the afternoon the more inquisitive of the on-lookers went around asking where the northern team was going.

WHERE AWAY?

This was in the nature of a starting question and caused a lot of figuring. It was finally decided that the northern team wasn't going around the ends because Ted Leathers, of Tech, and Herb Maffett, of Georgia, were guarding them. Or if they weren't in, the northern team still wasn't going around the ends because Moore, of Alabama, and Dalrymple, of Tulane, would be in there. This caused some confusion because the northern team seemed determined to go somewhere. Congressman Fiebig, of Georgia, and Vance Maree, of Tech, were at the tackles in the work-out yesterday and had added to the confusion. It developed that those who have advanced against that pair during the season had advanced backward in a very real hurry.

GUARDS, TOO.

A diligent search of the records revealed the fact that no one had used Red Maddox or Red Leathers, of Georgia, as a flanker all season. They happen to be guards. So are DeBonger, of Tech, and Steele, of Florida. And they haven't been anything but a path of thorns to opponents all fall.

This caused great consternation because it was thought that the northern team wanted to go somewhere. The southern adherents kept trying to find the path. At center they discovered that the Blues had a man who played with a weak team and was still better than most teams he faced. They found Eberdt, of Alabama, ready to go anywhere.

By this time the brain-curdling had become very weak indeed. They swapped it over and found that the southern team was very much in its own back. The boys were out there running signals with a lot of dash.

STUMPY, MACK.

In the backfield Stumpy Thomason was running well. He was honored with the captaincy of the team. He had on No. 3, the number he wore as a sophomore when he first upset the Dixie defense. The Stump is just as sure to get away a few times in this game as a sure thing. He is going to have a chance and that's all he asks. And there isn't a better fullback than Rothstein. And Dundup is quite a quarterback. Oh, quite.

Harry Mehre wept when he saw Ike Armstrong. "There's the guy that

Georgian Leads Army Next Year

BARSTON, Cal., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Capt. Charles J. "Polly" Heine of Easton, Ga., for the past three years right guard of the West Point army football team, was elected captain of next year's aggregation at a meeting of lieutenants on the train today en route to West Point.

"Red" Cagle's successor entered the military academy in 1925 and is completing three years' work at North Georgia Agricultural college. He was discharged from the academy in the same year for academic deficiency, but attended Washington and Lee for one year and entered West Point again in 1927.

Two football "schools" were conducted during the afternoon session.

Rival Plotters in All-Star Football Game

All-star teams of the Southern conference will meet Wednesday afternoon at Grant field. At the top is the backfield of the "Northern" team working out some plan to upset the "Southerners." Left to right: Gene McEver, Tennessee; Bobby Dodd, Tennessee; Buddy Hackman, Tennessee, and Al Hawkins, V. M. I. Below, Major Van Fleet, who is assisting Charlie Bachman with the Southern team, is shown working out a line play with the linemen. The game will be one of the greatest ever played here and a crowd of more than 20,000 is expected to see it.

Football Mentors Decide To Leave Existing Rules Entirely Alone.

Green-Eyed Monster Seen in Profs' Howl

Professors Who Flunk Students Should Be Treated As Coaches Who Lose Games.

By Ralph McGill.

Once in great while even one of our great minds will let the cat out of the bag.

At the meeting of the college professors at Durham, N. C., Dr. S. V. Sanford, of the University of Georgia, made an address in which he cited the fact that even the Carnegie Foundation declared athletic conditions were improving and that eradication of the unethical scholarship was the next forward step.

In several instances, Samuel Bemis, of George Washington University, Washington, D. C., got to his feet, according to the daily press, and declared that the gentleman from Georgia was attempting to throw dust in the faces of the delegates. He was quoted as saying that college coaches often get as much as $15,000 per year while a professor seeking to teach the true things of college life received only $3,000.

CAT GETS OUT. Dear, dear, dear. That scratching noise, was the cat getting out of the bag. The good doctor had exposed the real reason for most of the attacks on college sports; he had told. In a very few words the reason for the furious enemy which a few college professors have for athletics, particularly college football. It is the old green-eyed monster again.

In several years of getting about the country in the newspaper business one learns a few things that even a college professor may not know. One is that very few coaches earn that much money and another is that what they get they earn. Which may not be said for all the college professors.

There are no football coaches living in palaces. Most of them seem to be making monthly payments on furniture, the rent or installments on the purchase of their home. They don't complain about it or depreciate their profession by shouting about it. They seem to be leading normal sort of lives, once the season is closed, and attacks of gout from too much rich food are very, very few indeed.

FEW DULL COACHES.

There are very few dull football coaches. There are quite a few dull college professors. Strange as it may seem one might sit for years in the average classroom at the average college and learn not a thing about the true things of life. Lectures that are said over and over each year by the usual smart saying designed to make the co-eds titter: the usual trite remarks about the challenge of life, the holding high of the torch, the memorizing of poems by Johnson and such showman articles are displayed year after year in the average classroom.

There are a few college professors who make $15,000 per year. They are the ones who display new coats, who actually do teach new mosque. A special trainload of Knoxville fans are coming to see Mack and Mack gallop again. Tickets have been sold in blocks to fans in Jacksonville, Mobile, New Orleans, Montgomery, Macon, Greenville, S. C.; Lexington, Ky., and Birmingham.

A musical atmosphere will be provided by Shrine bands and drum corps here for the ceremonies.

Jackets Sink Stevens, 37-25

HOBOKEN, N. J., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Georgia Tech's powerful basketball quintet crashed through to a brilliant victory here tonight over Stevens Tech dribblers in the last five minutes by a score of 37-25.

Both teams battled on even terms during the first half and at half time were deadlocked 12-all. Perkins, on a three-point play, gave the Georgians the edge as the game got under way. But Persons and MacWatt, of Stevens, tied the count three-all. From then on the score saw-sawed from one side to the other.

Stevens flashed a light rally as the second half began, with Meinhold and Persons putting the Jersey quintet into the van by the count of 14-12. But then the southerners with their enormous height and weight over the home team went on a scoring spree, their shots finding the rim with little or no trouble. By virtue of this last five-minute stand Georgia Tech rolled up a 12-point advantage and won the game.

Carpenter in Charge

The veteran Bill Carpenter will again have complete charge of the staff of umpires in the International league. He hires and fires them.

Bob To Attend Famous Dinner

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh has been invited to be a guest of honor at the dinner to be given by the Madison Square Garden Club on January 14 at the Hotel Commodore to his president, William F. Curry.

The invitation to the flying colonel was extended by James I. Ennis, chairman of the dinner committee.

Two famous figures in sports, Bobby Jones and Gene Tunney, have accepted invitations. Major James J. Walker will be toastmaster.

It is expected 600 members and friends will attend.

'NORTHERNERS' READY TO GO ON NEW YEAR'S

Blue Squad Boasts Some of Dixie's Greatest. Team Balanced.

By Ed Danforth.

Hack and Mack and their blue-clad buddies from the north not only intend to score a few touchdowns on behalf of the old game of football but intend to take steps that the Cardinals of the south do not get to first base New Year's Day.

The major portion of the long double practice session held on Rose Bowl field yesterday by the Blues was devoted to defensive dummy scrimmage. Major Bob Neyland and his aides showed Captain McEver and his gang just where to stand on defense and what to do in case of fire, flood, tornado or earthquake. With military thoroughness, Major Neyland has attacked the problem of producing a well-balanced football team within a week. The Blues have had a little bit of everything in football. They have been told at least once what to do.

SMOOTH ATTACKS.

Consequently those who could crash the barred gates at the Rose Bowl field yesterday saw two smoothly working eleven doing things with a football that college teams do not reach before the middle of October—and sometimes never attain, to be frank.

And in the cool of the afternoon the Blues were patently tired of practice and ready to play football. They were right ready to get out there and show the Cardinals where to get off.

More than once Gus Tebbell, of North Carolina State, assisting Major Neyland, has groaned and said: "What would I give to see a mob like that the first day of practice back home?"

BALANCED SQUAD.

For sooth it is a marvelously balanced squad of 25 men. Bobby Dodd, team and line-backer, is a great quarterback, whose long low punts are next to impossible to handle and who whips a forward pass like an outfielder pegs to home plate. With him behind the line are Gene McEver and Buddy Hackman, as fine a pair of halfbacks as ever graced a southern team. The fullback is Al Hawkins, of V. M. I., a husky knacker, of whom much is expected Wednesday.

On the flanks are Hug and Brandt, Tennessee's own pair of fleet ends, who can cover punts or catch passes with the best. The tackles on Dodd's team are Chadwick, of V. M. I., a little less than 200 pounds, long arms, and Howard Johnson, the Tennessee captain. Both of them are big and shifty.

The guards are contrasting types. At one end is "Dusty" Williams, a chunky Kentucky player, whom Coach Neyland declares is the best center he has ever seen in action or catch passes who can cover punts or catch passes with the best. The tackles on Dodd's team are Chadwick, of V. M. I., a little less than 200 pounds, long arms, and Howard Johnson, the Tennessee captain. Both of them are big and shifty.

A GREAT CENTER.

At center is "Dusty" Williams, a chunky Kentucky player, whom Coach Neyland declares is the best center he has ever seen in action or catch passes who can cover punts or catch passes with the best.

Presumably those men represent what Coach Neyland considers his smoothest working combination.

However, in the other group with which Johnny Branch, of North Carolina State, is teamed, are enough fine players to send any coach into ecstasies. All of them will see service in the game. That much is certain.

Branch at quarterback is a player whom Atlanta fans never will forget. What he did to the Yellow Jackets last day back in October is nobody's business. He was a very short and fat man and a great pass receiver. On the other flank is Scott, of V. M. I., a heavy-set boy, who can evermore box a tackle. At one tackle is Drury, of Kentucky, who functions best as a tackle on defense and a guard on offense due to his great speed in the interference. Lepo, of North Carolina State, a man of ideal build, is at the other tackle.

Forquer, of Kentucky, and Gungles, of Clemson, are the two guards. They are bigger than any pair of guards the Southern squad can muster. Forquer was the best guard on the field in the Kentucky-Tennessee game. He can assure you. Josh Cody, of Great Britain, who functions best as a tackle on defense and a guard on offense due to his great speed in the interference. Lepo, of North Carolina State, a man of ideal build, is at the other tackle.

At one end is "Dusty" Williams, a chunky Kentucky player, whom Coach Neyland declares is the best center he has ever seen in action or catch passes who can cover punts or catch passes with the best.

The three extra players are Beall, of South Carolina, center; Bill Hawley, of W. & L., a lineman, and "Goat" McMillan, of Clemson, a passing and running back, who is the third quarterback on the Blue string.

A GREAT BUNCH.

All in all it is a bunch that would take any college through to a great season on the gridiron. Seven of them are from Tennessee and therefore team play has been developed to a greater extent than usually is possible in all-star teams. The Blues will have plenty of plays to hurl at the Cardinals, too. They are ready to go right on with the whole Tennessee repertoire.

The Cardinals of the South certainly have their work cut out for them in beating this bunch from up the road.

Four Big Games on New Year's Day To Wind Up Football

TILT AT FLATS ONE OF DAY'S BIG FEATURES

Rose Bowl Battle Other Outstanding Affair of
First of Year.

BY L. S. CAMERON.
United News Staff Correspondent.
NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—(United News.)—Football will bid a final farewell to its followers on New Year's Day with two games on the Pacific coast, one in the southwest and one in the south. Only one of the games—the Tournament of Roses contest between Pittsburgh and Southern California at Pasadena—is an official collegiate game, the other three being played by picked squads of college stars.

While the Pitt-Southern California game is attracting the major share of attention because of its possible bearing on national football ratings, the remaining contests hold considerable interest as a test of the strength of football in rival sections of the country.

REPRESENTATIVES.
The Midwest, which had the best intercollegiate record of any section of the country will be represented in two contests. Jimmy Phelan, coach of Purdue's Big Ten champions, will lead an all-star squad in a game against a picked aggregation of Southwestern conference players, at Dallas, Texas. In addition, a large number of midwestern players, including Big Ten stars, are members of the east team which meets a selected squad of Pacific coast luminaries in the annual east-west charity game at San Francisco.

Participation in the north-south game at Atlanta is limited to players from teams of the Southern conference. Teams have been selected from the two divisions of the conference. The game is officially sponsored by the Southern conference and is the first contest of its kind on record.

A feature of the picked squad games is the fact that numerous all-American players will be participating in their final collegiate games. Included among the all-American stars in the various games are: Glenn Davis, Georgia; Iowa; McEver, of Tennessee; Nagurski, of Minnesota; Welch and Slight, of Purdue; Beall, of Detroit, and Twomey and Cannon, of Notre Dame.

BIG SHARE.
The Pitt-Southern California Rose Bowl game also will have its share of all-American players. Joe Donohoe, of Pittsburgh, and Francis Tappan, of Southern California, named as ends on the United News' all-American, will be pitted against each other, thus providing an opportunity to judge the ability of the two rivals. Ray Montgomery, Pittsburgh guard, is a third member of the United News' all-American who will see action in the contest.

Particular interest is attached to this game because of the bearing it will have on Pittsburgh's claim to the national football championship. The Panthers completed their regular schedule without a defeat and were rated with Purdue and Notre Dame as outstanding claimants to national honors.

STRONGEST.
Notre Dame generally was conceded the strongest claim to the mythical title because the Irish met stronger opponents than Pittsburgh and Purdue. Pittsburgh backers contended that comparative scores of the Irish and Panthers against Carnegie Tech, the only mutual foes of the two eleven, entitled the Panthers to top rating.

Southern California held Notre Dame to a 13-to-12 score at Chicago. If Pittsburgh can overcome the handicap of a transcontinental trip and unfavorable climatic conditions, to score one of the east's few victories in Rose tournament competition, the Panthers will strengthen their claim to superiority over Notre Dame.

Jock Sutherland, the Panther coach, was much cheered by the weather outlook and announced his lineup for the game Wednesday as follows: Donohoe and Collins, ends; Tully and McMurdo, tackles; Montgomery and Dimello, guards; Daugherty, center; Baker, quarterback; Hanna and Walchus, halfbacks; Parkinson, fullback.

The Panthers went through a light workout in the Rose Bowl this afternoon. Southern California motored to Los Angeles and practiced on the university gridiron, Bovard field.

Teams at Dallas Tapering Off.

DALLAS, Texas, Dec. 30.—(P)—With a seat sellout expected and balmy weather in prospect, the all-star teams of the southwest and midwest began a tapering off process today in preparation for their charity game here New Year's Day. A two-day drill program will be cut to single workouts today and tomorrow. They spent yesterday in golfing and other mild diversions and today were reported in excellent shape by Bat Morrison, of Southern Methodist University, in charge of the southerners, and Jimmy Phelan, former Purdue mentor, who is coaching the midwestern players.

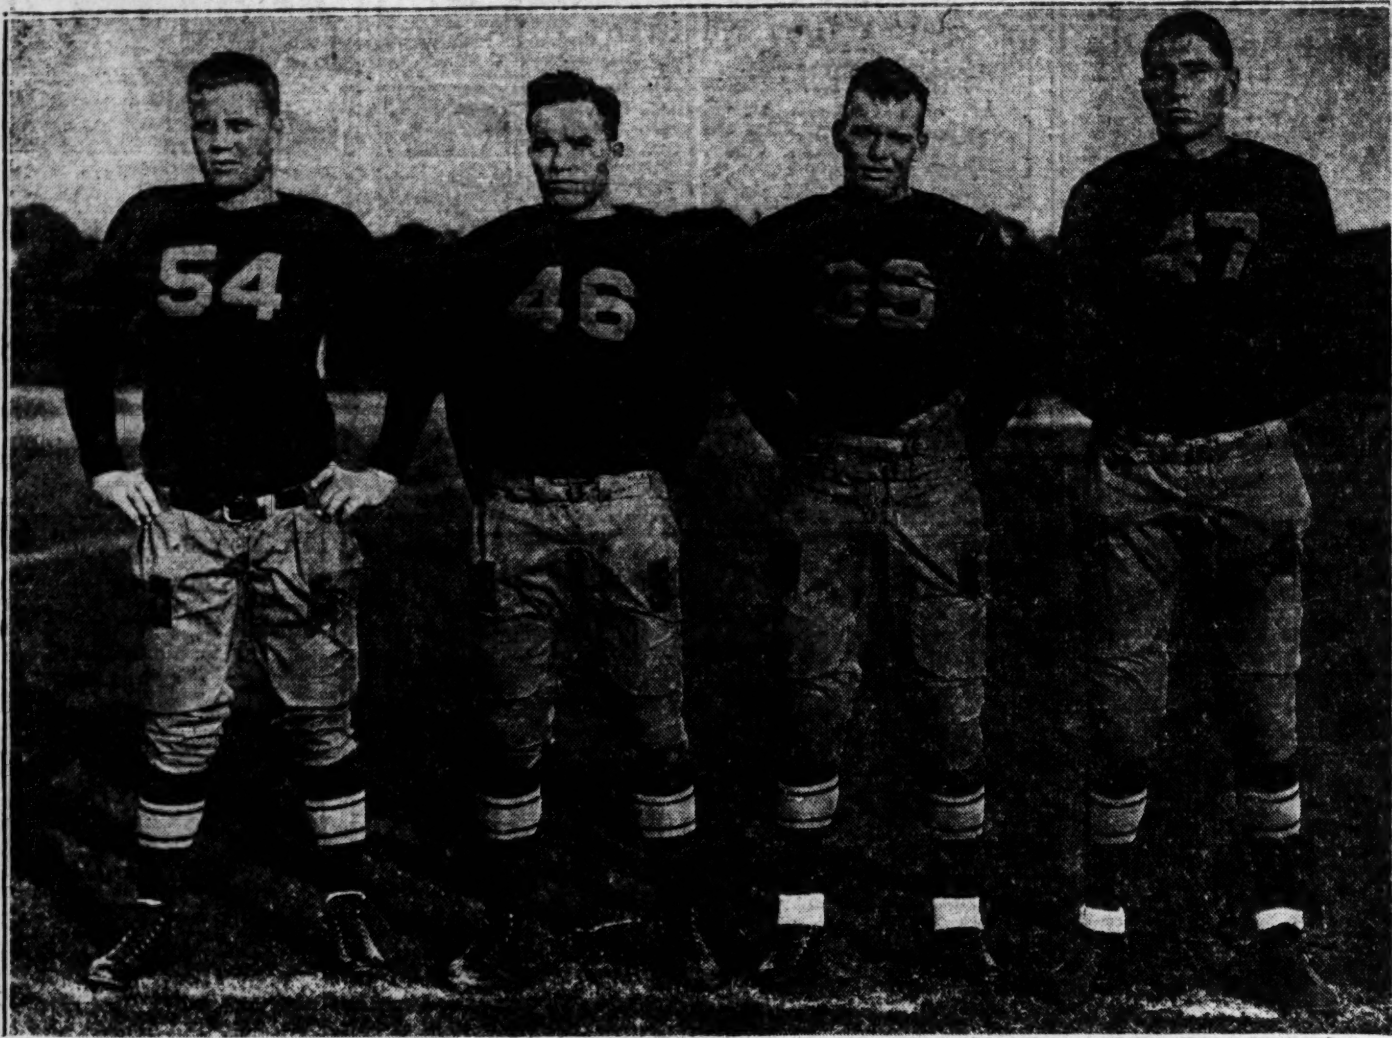

Both expected to supplement the single workout with skill practice today. Morrison had not decided on his starting lineup but indicated he would run his men in relays, keeping intact two sets of backs and two forward walls.

One of these walls possesses a wealth of tonnage that will compare favorably in weight with the opposition, while the other set of linemen is lighter but speedier. Neither backfield has a great amount of weight. Phelan probably will adopt the single substitution plan on his team, instead of using two complete squads.

Friedman Wins Indoor Match
NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—(P)—Bernard Friedman of Philadelphia, upset Frankie Parker, Milwaukee star and top seeded favorite, in the quarter finals of the national indoor tennis championship for boys by scores of 3-6, 7-5, 6-3.

Friedman holds the middle Atlantic states' junior title. In other quarter final boys' matches Mark Hecht, second seeded player, defeated a fellow New Yorker, John No-grady, 5-7, 8-6, 6-1; J. N. Anderson, Jr., Stevens prep, defeated Joseph Abrams, New York, 6-4, 6-4, and Giles Verstraten, McBurney school, defeated William Zimmerman, New York, 2-6, 6-2, 6-4.

Left to right: Schwartz, of California; Pomeroy, of Utah; Brumbelow, of Texas Christian, and Akerman, of St. Mary's. Tom Holm, Alabama star, will play for the East.

STAR ELEVEN SET FOR GAME

Pitt Hits Los Angeles To Find Weather Very Cloudy.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 30.—(United News.)—The most popular players from a score of well-known American colleges appeared ready tonight for the annual east-west all-star football game for the benefit of crippled children here Wednesday. There were only a few minor injuries, which were expected to disappear before game time. The east staged its last hard scrimmage at Stanford practice field today. The pick of the west also made ready to slacken up work with a hard session at St. Mary's college. Signal drills are all that have been scheduled for Tuesday.

Pitt Strikes Dark Weather.

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 30.—(United News.)—"Unusual" southern California weather, for years the chief topic of conversation with the natives, raised the attention tonight of a group of athletes from the University of Pittsburgh.

"Unusual" weather here means no sunshine. For the second time since July clouds completely shut out the sun here and the Panthers practiced under a leaden sky at the Rose Bowl. The temperature was no higher than 60 degrees today, compared with a close of 80 degrees mark of many weeks past.

Jock Sutherland, the Panther coach, was much cheered by the weather outlook and announced his lineup for the game Wednesday as follows: Donohoe and Collins, ends; Tully and McMurdo, tackles; Montgomery and Dimello, guards; Daugherty, center; Baker, quarterback; Hanna and Walchus, halfbacks; Parkinson, fullback.

All-Stars To Speak At Station WSB

Families of the players in the all-star game to be played here New Year's Day will have an opportunity to hear their sons wish them a happy New Year over radio. All the players will be at station WSB at the Biltmore from 5 to 5:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon to speak over the radio, wishing their friends and their families good fortune for the New Year.

SOUTHERNERS DEFY BLUES

ruined us," he said. "I wonder if he'd mind repeating that run he made against us again on Wednesday? I would like to see how it looked. I shut my eyes at Columbus and didn't see the last half of it." There are Red Bethel, Cowboy Woodruff and Warner Mizell. There doesn't seem to be any way to keep those boys from going somewhere.

The manpower is over on the northern side. They have it. They also have the weight. The southern team will be outwounded several pounds per man. It is this weight which the southern backfield may run around.

PASSES TO FLY.
The northern team is expected to use a lot of passes. It will be quite painful if they do because Rothstein catches most of those thrown by the opposition.

So the southern supporters don't see where the northern team is going. Some were rude enough to say they were going nowhere at all. This was just what a listless reporter picked up with a couple of ears.

Just to remind you again—the odds favor the northern team to win. They have the most natural combinations on the attack. But they will have a very difficult time going anywhere.

What a treat there is in store for John Public!

the true things of life. They are worth it. There are a few football coaches who make that much. It is because they are worth it.

Statistics show that 90 per cent of the football coaches last but two years at one institution. A much smaller percentage last five years and those who stick around 10, 15 and 25 years are few in number as to appear lost in the coaching world.

COLLEGE POLITICS.
The average college professor can drone on so long as he likes provided he pays enough attention to the niceties of college politics.

Storms of aroused alumni do not beat around him; he is not in the public eye, he does not depend on the number of men who pass his work to keep his job.

The football coach who does not win has to move on. It is part of his job. He cannot afford to buy a home because he does not know how long he will live in the town he is in.

SHOULD GET "CON."
The college professor, before he attacks the football coach for the salary he makes, should condition himself. It should be the law of the university that a college professor who does not prepare his men so that they can pass all their examinations should be pilloried in the press and fired from his job.

A college professor who has a large percentage of men to fail has failed to teach them enough or has failed to inspire them to study enough. At any rate, the fault is his.

The football coach who does not prepare his men to win, who does not possess the faculty for making them work for him and their school, is fired. The fault is not always his because the alumni, and sometimes the faculty, are sticking their hands into his business. The football coach is never found in the classroom affairs.

LEADER OF MEN.
The football coach who succeeds is one whom the boys will follow. He is meeting a dozen requirements that the college professor escapes in the cubicle cloister which life permits him.

Dr. Bonis was, no doubt, sincere in his attitude. Too often, however, many enemies of college sport use a high-sounding attack

'Y' TRIANGLES BEAT FURMAN

Brilliant Rally Nets 24 to 23
Victory; Purple Plays
J. P. C. Tonight.

With only 30 seconds left to play and trailing by one point, Willie O'Conner, coach and forward of the Y. M. C. A. basketball team, shot a field goal from the sideline to defeat Furman University, 24 to 23, Monday night on the Y. M. C. A. court. It was the first game of the season for both teams and was witnessed by a capacity crowd.

Furman was handicapped by the small court, but the sophomore team, playing their first game together, displaying a brilliant passing game throughout. They scored very few field goals from long range and worked the ball under the baskets unusually well.

The visitors, through the accurate shooting of Watson, at center, forged into the lead early in the game and were never headed until the final 30 seconds, when O'Conner's field goal won the game.

Tom Medlin, former University School for Boys star, and Nick George, former Georgia Tech star, played spectacular basketball. Medlin scored three field goals from long range in quick succession early in the second half and placed the locals in a position to win the game.

Watson, rangy Furman center, was the high scorer of the game with 12 points. He made many of his field goals good from directly under the basket on follow-up shots. Southern repored just what a listless reporter picked up with a couple of ears.

Just to remind you again—the odds favor the northern team to win. They have the most natural combinations on the attack. But they will have a very difficult time going anywhere.

A. A. U. LEADER PREDICTS FINE ATHLETIC ERA

Brundage Says Amateur
Sports Will Surpass
Present Day Scope.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—Speaking at a general discussion of college and school athletics as described by the Carnegie Foundation's famous "bulletin 23," Avery Brundage, of Chicago, president of the Amateur Athletic Union, today predicted "an era of amateur athletics that will far surpass what we already have."

Agreeing that abuses exist, Mr. Brundage related how the Chicago Athletic Association was forced to abandon the sport of track and field because of the demands of athletes who had received subsidies at college and sought similar inducements from the club.

"If all the hullabaloo of the football season is designed solely for the physical training of some 40 or 50 men on the squad," said Mr. Brundage, "it's all wrong—it's all foolishness."

NEED.
The need, he declared, is for the development of a higher standard of amateur sportsmanship among all those connected with this and other sports, whether in a competitive or administrative capacity or merely as a spectator.

Taking an optimistic view, Mr. Brundage said, "we are learning that the public and the press demand when we have rules that they must be lived up to" and forecast a general improvement through a closer adherence to the principles of amateurism in amateur sport.

"Bulletin 23" was hailed by Dr. Charles W. Kennedy, of Princeton, as "one of the greatest services that could be performed for amateur sport in this or any other country." While noting improvement in the conditions, as described in the report, Dr. Kennedy declared "there is still a very great responsibility resting upon us."

REFRESHING.
True amateur athletics are a refreshing influence "in these days when it is almost nothing that does not have a price tag attached," Dr. Kennedy said. He urged that every effort be made to keep them free of commercial taint.

As to the contention that a student athlete is entitled to share some of the gate receipts as a reward for his "services," Dr. Kennedy declared: "We do not look at it that way at Princeton. We owe the athlete nothing. On the contrary he receives from the university the privilege of bearing the Princeton colors and he must bear them in the right way."

Barbuti Married Almost a Year

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—(P)—Ray Barbuti, Olympic 400-meter running champion, and Miss Marian Sylvia Hicks, sister of Helen Hicks, star golfer, have been married for more than nine months without the knowledge even of close friends.

The information came out today when the Olympic hero revealed that the wedding took place March 24 at the Episcopal church in Great Neck and that he and Mrs. Barbuti are now residing in Row Gardens. It was on Long Island that the couple met, married and are making their home.

Barbuti, who starred in football and track at Syracuse University as well as winning America's only flat race victory at Amsterdam, is now in the insurance business in New York.

SYNOPSIS.

John Andrew Kellogg, heir to millions, asks Barbara Thornton to marry him. She agrees, but not very graciously. When she learns that he has just lost his job she tells him that she will never marry him. He calls on his attorney, David Craig, who tells him that he will never inherit the money his father left if he doesn't prove himself capable of managing his life in a sensible way. He tells him that, since he has lost one job after another, he will have to double five thousand dollars in thirty days or live on an income from a trust fund for the rest of his life. John Andrew telephones this to Barbara, and she offers to give him five thousand to turn over to Craig. She refuses and tells her he is going to Hollywood. She is furious with him and breaks the engagement. He decides to go to San Francisco and start a movie production. On the train he meets Anne Ames, who is on her way to Hollywood with a letter of introduction to a movie producer. They become interested in each other. Before saying goodbye in Utah, John Andrew tells Anne that he will see her in Los Angeles in a few days.

Arrived in San Francisco, John Andrew meets an old school friend, Peter Merriam, on the street. Peter is selling Mercury cars and tries to sell one to John Andrew. They go for a trial spin, and with John Andrew at the wheel, have a slight smash-up. In order to save Peter's job John Andrew buys the custom built roadster for $4,000. He then drives all but a hundred dollars of his expense money to an old man with an invention, taking half interest in the machine without asking what it is all about. He drives the machine to Los Angeles and goes to the Consolidated Studios to see Anne. At noon the machine is in the lot together in the studio restaurant and meet Bill Carey, famous character actor.

INSTALLMENT XX. TWO CHANCES.

"I don't know why you love me," John Andrew said humbly to Anne. "Just the same, you ought to be spanked for what you've said, and you know it. Sell something? If I took furnaces up to the north pole they'd turn out to be refrigerating machines. I couldn't even make a good bootlegger. I couldn't sell genuine hucardi in a New York store. I wouldn't be able to sell this, even if it was I'm afraid it isn't."

"What?" "Something to revolutionize the motion picture industry," John Andrew said, quoting from old Blake's notes. "The greatest invention man ever conceived—the . . . er . . . the Blake-Kellogg camera."

"They've got thousands of cameras here, John Andrew. Which firm do you sell for? Is that why you came to the coast?"

"I represent—since you've discovered me—the Blake-Kellogg Company," Anne said honestly. "I never heard of it."

Before John Andrew could weigh the words his lips said, "Neither did any one else."

"And so you're making up another story, John Andrew! And you promised—"

"Just be patient with me," Kellogg said, swinging into a boulevard laden with traffic. "The habits of a lifetime are difficult to control. I'm not foolish, Anne; that is, I hope I'm not. Seriously, if this camera works, and I sell it, I'll make millions . . . heavens and Craig only know how many . . . and—"

"I'm afraid," Anne said miserably. "So'm I," said John Andrew. "The darn thing may be a perpetual motion machine in disguise instead of a motion picture machine. P.M. instead of M.P. Probably is. But even so—"

"I'm afraid to marry you," the girl elaborated, sitting closer to the side of the car. "I know I love you. But . . . but . . . can I be honest with you?"

John Andrew, shifting into second to cross a wide, rutted intersection, nodded.

"I'm afraid I'm going to hurt you, John Andrew. I don't want a husband who wants to—to live on what I—"

"Think I would?" John Andrew asked grimly.

Anne's words came to him brokenly, as if she had lost control over them. "No . . . I didn't mean that. I did, but you couldn't. You tell the worst lies about some things. You almost believe them yourself, although I know you had to borrow enough to pay the landlady in New York. You aren't rich. I don't want you to be. Don't talk in millions any more. Thousands of men wear good clothes, but they aren't plutocrats. Neither are you; you're just people. I should not marry any one."

Apparently she balked at saying "you," she talked even more hastily now. "That Mr. Chester moves his lips against mine and I hate it. I've always wanted my chance. It will take more than that to stop me. Things are a terrible mess. I love you, John Andrew. Why'd you come to the boarding house? Why were you on the train? Why do you love me?" And then, "Please forget everything I've said. I . . . I love you most awfully, John Andrew. I can't help it."

Kellogg reached over and covered her hand with his own. "Don't try to," he said huskily, and with emotion close to the surface continued as lightly as he was able. "I won't try to see you tomorrow, Sunday. I'm going to send for my mother's ring. I'd like you to have it. And seeing doubt again in Anne's eyes, said soberly: "It isn't very large, Anne; dad was a very poor man." He bit off the words, "when they were married."

"I don't need a diamond to remind me that I love you," (John Andrew remembered the sort of ring Barbara wished to select for herself, by herself.) "I almost wish I didn't . . . didn't love you, I mean. I mean . . . I can't tell you. Don't talk to me, John Andrew; don't let's even think. Tomorrow I'll—"

"Regret it?" "Next week," John Andrew said, as if to himself.

Anne came closer to him, but said nothing more. Kellogg could realize well enough the thoughts whirling through Anne's head: he himself clung—partly through fear—to the theory that if she loved him she loved him without conditions and despite reasoning or judgment. She must be told, surely, exactly what the situation was, but not now; not when she was already distressed. John Andrew saw clearly how explanation at this time might do both of them horrible damage. If Anne loved him, thinking him a bluffer and a fraud, she would love him also even if he fell down in accomplishing something he had set out to do. Being a fraud, John Andrew felt, was not nearly as bad as bluffing about it, but worse, vastly, than trying to do something and failing.

Silently, driving steadily, he kept the custom built roadster, sleek and silver, prouder in its wealth than ever John Andrew was, humming toward the house in which Anne was living. A depth of perception kept him from touching her, but when she got out of the Mercury—motioning John Andrew to keep his place behind the wheel—he said only, "Night, sweetheart." Anne, so far as he could hear, did not reply, but when he was at the corner he turned and thought she waved at him. He was not certain of this, but if she had he felt that everything was satisfactory.

Everything? No that, but the most important of things—getting Anne. The item of the jade green roadster, $4,980, remained the same, but after having paid for dinner John Andrew's cash in hand had suffered a severe blow. He had exactly $524.85 remaining. He thought as he drove, "I never had a chance. Well, I'll take my beating. Anne makes up for it. I'll tell her and get that over with." Having so decided, he was extremely loath to do that very thing. He did make up his mind not to wire Craig for money until his little fund was almost gone. "The longer I hold out," he reasoned, "the longer the old fellow'll think I've got a chance, and he doesn't know won't hurt him until he finds out."

Anne would love him no matter how the venture turned out. She would love him, but would she marry him? Anne, wanting success, would want it for him also, and not measured in dollars, either. What a start he had made! Anne wouldn't even care about the Canadian Rockies and Pink Millerton's shack over the lake unless it was earned. "A rotten viewpoint," John Andrew muttered. "Warped. She ought to get over it. What's money? Having always had all she desired, what, indeed? This way and that Kellogg argued, ending each time in a deeper ravine of gloom than before. Summed up, he had lost his one chance of convincing people that he could do anything save dance blithely through life; he cared nothing for people, but he did want the approval of Craig and Anne's confidence. He found that he was wanting her approbation almost as much as her love. "I'll bet staying on top's as hard as rising," he thought glumly, and he'll be kicked off the ladder."

Two chances only remained to accomplish the conditions of the will; either he could sell the Mercury and start again—how, he did not know—or the old man's invention might be something worth marketing. For all his gay words about the soundless camera to Anne, John Andrew concentrated on the former solution. Let Anne say what she would about his disposing of the jade green car; let her think what she would. There remained most of the thirty days. He'd buy corner lots. He'd find some one who wanted to produce a motion picture, make Anne the star, and sell the film. He'd buy Greek Bank on margin and pyramid. He'd . . . what?

"Anne's not Barbara," Kellogg said almost aloud. "She's got to like me the way I am, if that's possible. I can't help wanting to give others a hand. I ought to; I've got enough to do it. Wish I could help her also."

And then there came to him the notion that Anne, far from wanting help, might refuse to stop acting. No Canadian Rockies. No cherry festival in Nikki. No arroz in Valencia in that butt-near the Pyrenees. His misery increased. In addition he discovered that he was uncertain of the way to the Pointe-aux-Lacs and drove along dark streets until he came to one in which shop windows were partially lighted. He turned down it, driving slowly and waiting until he saw an officer from whom he could ask the way. The Mercury, with the engine almost as silent as if it were coasting, slid along the polished black asphalt gently . . . gently . . . less gently . . . bump . . . bump-bump-bump.

BRILLIANT SOCIAL FUNCTIONS USHER IN THE NEW YEAR

Atlanta Clubs Will Be Gay With Whistles, Horns, Bells

Bells, whistles, horns, clappers, confetti, tinsel, paper caps, and a bit of mystery—all of these will make their appearance after the evening of 1929—a new year—new hope as fresh and spotless as the proverbial cherub entwined in his tinselled letters, will slip across the pages of time. The city will wait in rapt expectancy while the new day whistles itself across the night. Couples will dance into the new year, and youth will frolic until the hour of 12 to see the old year out and the new year in. In the words of the learned philosopher, all things pass away. The year is no exception. Joys and sorrows will slip out with the incoming year. Fresh enthusiasm, good intentions, a forward look, will claim the first new day of 1930.

The Nine O'Clocks, exclusive social club of Atlanta, will give a fancy dress ball this evening at the Piedmont Driving Club. Brilliant entertainments featuring the customary noise-makers, horns, bells, confetti and favors, will be given at the Capitol City Club, the Biltmore, the Hotel Chandler and the Standard Club.

Mrs. Charles Winship will be hostess at a bridge tea at her home on Montclair drive in honor of Miss Mary MacRey Hough, of Lancaster, E. C. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Peters will be hosts at a bridge party this evening at their home on Ponce de Leon avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Glenn will entertain at an informal party at their home on Myrtle street, honoring Miss Henry Jackson, of New York city.

School girls, debutantes and future brides will be among those who are central figures in parties of the day. Miss Dorothy Dobbs entertains at a luncheon at her home on Spruill road, complimenting a group of college girls who are at home for the holidays. Miss Mary Russell Irlby will be hostess at luncheon at her home on Brookhaven drive, honoring Miss Betty Scott. Miss Jane Sharp will entertain at a tea at her home on Rivers road, honoring a group of debutantes.

Fort McPherson will be the scene of a round of New Year's eve festivities. The Officers' Club will entertain at a fancy dress ball at the clubhouse. Colonel and Mrs. Harry J. Tebbetts will entertain at dinner at their quarters. Major and Mrs. Ward E. Duval will be hosts at an informal supper party at their quarters at Fort McPherson. Colonel and Mrs. Christian A. Back will entertain at a buffet supper at their quarters, honoring their schoolgirl daughter, Miss Helen Back.

Miss Della Hancock Weds Mr. Taylor.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Dec. 30.—The marriage of Miss Della Hancock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hancock, of the Fredonia community, to Joe Taylor, of Canilla, was solemnized last Sunday in Thomasville. The Rev. W. J. Chisholm, of Nashville, Ga., performed the ceremony.

Mrs. Samuel Bonn Is Honor Guest At Luncheon

Mrs. Frank Stewart was hostess at a luncheon party yesterday at her home on Habersham road in honor of Mrs. Samuel G. Bonn, of Palo Alto, Cal., the guest of her sister, Mrs. Julian Field. The guests were seated at exquisitely appointed tables seating groups of four, with the honor guest and hostess seated at a larger table with covers laid for eight.

The table was overlaid with a handsome patchwork lace cover and the smaller tables were covered with fluted cloths. In the center of each table a poinsettia plant was placed, with silver candlesticks holding green tapers arranged on either side of the central decoration. Silver compotes holding red and green bonbons, and hand-painted place cards featuring the holiday colors added to the beauty of the decorations.

Mrs. Stewart and Mrs. Bonn were assisted in receiving the guests by Miss Evelyn Belle Gregg. Thirty guests were invited to meet the honor guest, who is a lifelong friend of the hostess, and is numbered among the most prominent visitors in Atlanta.

Mrs. T. K. Glenn Honors Debutantes.

Mrs. Thomas K. Glenn was hostess at luncheon Monday at the Biltmore, honoring Misses Catherine Norcross and Adele Winston, popular debutantes of this season. Covers were placed for the honor guests and Misses Frances Barnett, Lena Knox, Augusta Porter, Elizabeth Spaulding, Leila Mason, Frances Howard, Boyce Locke, Helena Callaway, Eleanor Johnson, Myra Boynton, Peggy Poldine, Cornelia Orme, Catherine Howell and Mary Arnold and Mrs. Thomas Cassels.

Whiteford Garden Club Sponsors Party.

Whiteford Garden Club will sponsor a Christmas party at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Harry Strickland, 67 Whiteford avenue, S. E.

Mrs. Ottley To Honor Mrs. Charles Goodman

Misses Goodrum, Goddard and Barnett Honored by Mrs. James J. Goodrum

Mrs. James Jefferson Goodrum entertained at a dinner-dance last evening at the Piedmont Driving Club, the brilliant social event honoring her nieces, Miss Mildred Goodrum, of Newnan, Miss Mary Nicolson Goddard and Miss Frances Barnett, to which belles and beaux and members of the married contingent of society were invited. Miss Goodrum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Goodrum, of Newnan, is a student at Wesleyan college in Macon, and Miss Goddard is attending Miss Finch's school in New York city, while Miss Barnett, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Stephen Barnett, is one of the most popular members of the Debutante Club of 1929-30.

Receiving Party.

Mrs. Goodrum and the trio of charming honor guests received in the ballroom, standing before an artistic arrangement of stately palms and ferns, starred with pedestal baskets holding varicolored spring flowers.

Dinner was served at individual tables placed around the edge of the ballroom, each table being adorned with a mound of pink roses, lavender sweet peas, callendula, delphinium and white lilies. The exquisite favors were wrapped in pastel-colored papers, and included gift-like playing cards, Eversharp pencils, and cigar toppers for the gentlemen, while the ladies were presented bottles of perfume, atomizers and compacts. An Elizabeth Arden traveling set was awarded to the girl winning the lucky number contest, with a traveling clock being given to the gentleman. Garlands of smilax entwined the row of white columns on either side of the ballroom, and palms flanked the fireplace at the eastern end of the room. Punch was served in the loggia, the bowl being embedded in a circlet of pastel-shaded flowers, and decorated with richly-colored fruits. The grand march was led by Thomas B. Faine, dancing with Miss Goddard, in which the guests participated.

Handsome Gowns.

Mrs. Goodrum was gowned in a stylish model of black fish-net, veiling black satin, and she wore a shoulder bouquet of orchids. Miss Goodrum wore a gown of silver blue satin and carried an old-fashioned nosegay of pastel-shaded flowers. Miss Goddard's gown was of black tulle, offset by a pair of red satin slippers, and a shoulder bouquet of orchids. Miss Barnett was gowned in an imported model, the waist being of silver lace, while the skirt was built of white tulle. Her flowers were orchids and valley lilies. Mrs. John N. Goddard, Mrs. Stephen Barnett and Miss Mary Goodrum assisted Mrs. Goodrum in entertaining, and an orchestra rendered musical selections for dancing.

To All Atlanta Rich's Wishes The Happiest of New Years!

Sixty-two times we have sent this self-same message out to herald a new-fledged year . . . a greeting and good cheer from friend to friend.

More than ten millions of people passed through our doors in the past year . . . a year which public confidence and participation in our prosperity established as the greatest in our history!

Our plan for early closing hours at Christmas time met with overwhelming response and gratifying results.

Each month, each week, each day, we have kept faith with the people of Atlanta and the South.

And on this, the beginning of a New Year . . . we pause to pledge anew our four cardinal principles:

Rich's Leads in Lowest Prices!
Rich's Leads in Liberal Credits!
Rich's Leads in Style and Quality!
Rich's Leads in Pleasant Adjustments!

A SOUTHERN INSTITUTION FOR 62 YEARS!

Many Atlantans Are Students At University of Ga.

ATHENS, Ga., Dec. 30.—One hundred and thirty Atlanta students attended the fall term at the University of Georgia's 1929-30 session. With 1,808 students, the university has an enrollment which is 64 above that for December, 1928.

Since the opening of the fall term in September, the students have had several opportunities to hear lectures delivered by prominent speakers throughout the nation. One of international fame was Dr. Andre Siegfried, of France, a noted political writer and economist. Edward R. Roybal, publisher of "Every Man's Library," and Sam Small, associate editor of The Atlanta Constitution, also spoke. On October 32, Sanford Field stadium was dedicated and on that memorial day the Bulldogs of Georgia defeated the Bulldogs of Yale, 16 to 0, in one of the greatest football victories ever to be earned by a southern team. The stadium is one of the largest in the south and its dedication services were impressive.

Plans for a new law school building are almost complete and construction will begin soon. The new structure will be on the main campus. ## To End a Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

To end a stubborn cough quickly, it is important to soothe and heal the inflamed membrane, get rid of the germs and also to aid the system inwardly to help throw off the trouble.

For these purposes, here is a home-made medicine, which is being sold for you could buy at 3 times the cost. From one dram, get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar, until the mixture is honey to fill up the pint. This takes but a moment, and makes a remedy so effective that you will never do without it, once you have used it. Keeps perfectly, and children like it.

This simple remedy does three necessary things. First, it loosens the germs, then it soothes the inflamed membrane. Third, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief, even in the obstinate bronchial coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.—(adv.)

Mr. and Mrs. Large To Be Honored On 23rd Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. David Woodward entertained at dinner Wednesday evening at the Georgian Terrace, in compliment to Mr. and Mrs. Edward K. Large, the occasion marking the twenty-third wedding anniversary of these distinguished citizens. Mr. Large holds the official position of postmaster of Atlanta. Covers will be placed for Mr. and Mrs. Large, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Harvey, Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Case, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Tull, Mr. and Mrs. Mrs. Hugh Foster, Mrs. Joseph N. Moody, Miss Marion Woodward, Goodie Lindley, of Nashville, Tenn., and Mr. and Mrs. Woodward.

Mr. and Mrs. Large were married in Evanson, Ill., on January 1, 1907, at the home of the sister of the bride, Mrs. John Ackerman. The ceremony was solemnized at 4 o'clock in the afternoon and was a brilliant social event. Mrs. Large was formerly Miss Edna Page, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Page, and was graduated from Vassar college with high honors. She has always evidenced a deep interest in educational work, and her efforts have been of inestimable value in the student aid fund of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs. Mr. Large is a graduate of Princeton, and at the time of his marriage he was connected with the Pennsylvania railroad. They have three attractive children, a son, Edward K. Large, Jr.; Misses Mary and Josephine Large, and aside from their social and civic interests, Mr. and Mrs. Large are devout members of the First Presbyterian church.

Mr. and Mrs. Asa G. Candler Honor the Misses Candler

Mr. and Mrs. Asa G. Candler, Jr., entertained last evening at a dancing party at their home, Briarcliff Manor, on Briarcliff road, honoring their two daughters, Misses Martha and Helen Candler, who are students at Ward-Belmont school in Nashville, Tenn., and who are spending the holidays with their parents. The beautiful home was decorated with quantities of roses and palms, and the ballroom, where the dance was held, was handsomely decorated with ferns, palms and baskets of roses. Punch was served at each end of the ballroom, from the dance was held, was of mounds of pink roses and fern. As-

Misses Mr. and Mrs. Candler and Misses Candler in entertaining the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Chambers, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. John Candler, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Howard Candler, Jr.

Mrs. Candler wore a gown of turquoise blue chiffon velvet, made with unbroken hemline. She wore a corsage of orchids and valley lilies. Miss Martha Candler was gowned in turquoise blue crepe, made with the new high waistline. Her flowers were orchids and valley lilies. Miss Helen Candler wore a gown of Picardy rose crepe, made long in the back, with uneven hemline, and her corsage was of orchids and valley lilies.

Arkansas Belle Weds Georgian.

KINGSLAND, Ark., Dec. 30.—Of interest in Georgia was the wedding of Miss Gladys Foster, of Kingsland, Ark., to Professor Will H. Williams, of Marshallville, Ga., which took place at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. R. M. Foster, in Kingsland, Monday at 11:30 o'clock, the occasion marking the thirty-eighth wedding anniversary of the bride's parents, Rev. R. F. Scott, pastor of the Methodist church, read the ceremony, in the presence of a few relatives and friends. Preceding the ceremony Miss Marie McCoy sang "I Love You Truly." She was accompanied by S. C. Thomas, sister of the bride. The bride was lovely in her wedding dress of brown flat crepe with matching accessories. She carried an arm bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums tied with gold tulle. The bride, who is a talented musician, is the daughter of Mrs. R. M. Foster. After graduating from high school she attended Quachita college where she received the bachelor of arts and bachelor of music degrees. She later studied in Peabody college, Nashville, and in Sherwood School of Music, Chicago. Since then she has taught in Arkansas, Georgia and Louisiana. Mr. Williams, who is superintendent of schools in Marshallville, Ga., graduated from Oglethorpe and later studied in Columbia University. Immediately after the wedding an informal reception was held after which Mr. and Mrs. Williams left for a wedding trip to points in Florida, where the ceremony will be at home in Marshallville, Ga.

BURGESS CHILDREN'S STORIES

SPOOKY PUTS HAPPY JACK OUT By Thornton W. Burgess.

There still are those who think that it is nothing more or less than might. —Happy Jack Squirrel.

Happy Jack the Gray Squirrel wasn't happy. He had possession of his new house—why Spooky? So Happy Jack had built especially for him and put in the maple tree in the front yard. But still he wasn't happy. You see, all day long Spooky the Screech Owl had set somewhere near at hand ready to take possession if Happy Jack should come out. Happy Jack knew that Spooky once got inside he would stay there. So Happy Jack was in a way a prisoner in his own house.

But this wasn't the worst of it. Happy Jack kept thinking about the coming of the Black Shadows! You see, Happy Jack is afraid of the dark. That is, he is afraid to be out after dark. He hasn't the kind of eyes that can see well in the dark. On the other hand, Spooky the Screech Owl loves the dark. He keeps by day and night. All this Happy Jack knew. He understood perfectly why Spooky was hanging around. He was just waiting until it should be dark. Then he would come right into that house and Happy Jack would be in a way a prisoner in his own house. He knew what would happen with Spooky using those stout, sharp claws and that hooked bill, while he, Happy Jack, couldn't see to fight. At last the Black Shadows came, creeping across the Green Meadows and up to the maple tree in Farmer Brown's yard. It grew dark inside that little house. Happy Jack heard a thump on the roof. He knew what had made that thump. He knew that Spooky had alighted on the roof. He could hear Spooky move about. He could hear him scratching on the roof. It all made him most uncomfortable. He grew more and more fearful. He knew he wouldn't be able to sleep in the night. There would be no sleep for him all night. He began to wish that he hadn't insisted on keeping that house. He wished that he had let Spooky have it.

Spooky poked his head in at the doorway. Happy Jack snapped at him and ground his teeth and snarled.

The next story: "Happy Jack is Taken Care of."

13-Period Calendars Ready To Complicate Time in 1930

100 FIRMS TO PUT NEW SYSTEM IN USE

BY FREDERICK C. OTHMAN, United News Staff Correspondent. CHICAGO, Dec. 30.—(United News.)—The new year is going to be so complicated for several thousand of the nation's citizens that it is likely they won't even know what month it is, if anyone happens to ask them.

The difficulties will be next Thursday when the new 13-month calendars go into effect in some 100 business concerns over the United States.

The complications begin at once. Regular calendars, the ones with pictures of beautiful women on them, will mark the new year by saying that it is Wednesday, January 1. The next day, Thursday, the new 13-month calendars go into effect, starting off the year on January 2.

That doesn't sound so very difficult to understand, and after all it really isn't compared to what comes in February.

The second Thursday of the second month of the new calendar is February 6 on the old. That isn't quite so simple.

No Months.

The 13-month calendar calls the months "periods." As the periods go by, the situation gradually becomes thoroughly gumbled up as far as the citizens who work by the new calendar and live by the old, are concerned.

They likely will be become used to Sunday coming in the middle of the week and maybe they will become accustomed to having their bills sent to them after a period has progressed a

COUNTERFEIT BILL CAUSES ARREST OF ST. PAUL THIEF

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 30.—(AP)—F. H. Keeler, 24, who said he was wanted in St. Paul, Minn., for theft of approximately $37,000 worth of cash and securities and a quantity of stock certificates from Payne Webber & Company, stock brokers there, was arrested here late today. With the exception of approximately $1,200 Keeler had all of the property with him at the time of his arrest. The $1,200, he told police, had been spent since he left St. Paul with the brokers' money and securities on the night of December 2.

Keeler said he was employed as a messenger by the brokers and that he had stolen the money and securities. His arrest resulted from his deposit of a fraudulent $20 bill in a local bank with other funds. He said he had received the bill since he came here.

JUDGING THE SHOWS

The remaining three of the four acts are good average vaudeville turns. Dorothy and Rosetta Ryan, sister dancing and singing team, won a nice and in the opening spot Monday afternoon. Stan Katt, Australian juggler, in second, started slow, but left the paying guests clamoring for more at his close. His good looks and easy manner were a definite advantage. Bad oversight. Should have given name and 'phone number, too. The third act is a quite clever dance presentation. Marion Williams, assisted by Jack Meyer and Charles Rudy Twins. Good, all four of 'em.
